“Clothes to be Smart MUST be Made to Order”

Good Clothes Easy Prices

The Loftus Suits, Overcoats and Trousers are always made in the very latest style from fabrics of newest patterns. The best cutters and tailors are employed and a garment is never regarded as finished until the buyer is absolutely satisfied. If by any chance the clothes we make for you, do not suit you, you need not pay us a cent. If you have had any doubt as to our ability to serve you satisfactorily, this offer should dispel it. You'll find all the popular and correct fabrics of the Spring season here in great variety—in fact greater variety, we believe, than any three other tailors in New York can show. Will you come and look? We make a specialty of our Famous Suits and Overcoats to order at $15.00, but also make clothes at all prices as follows:

Business Clothes, $15 to $35

Cutaway Coats and Vests, $13 to $30

Top Coats and Chesterfields, $15 to $35

Prince Alberts, $18 to $40

Dress Suits, $35 to $60

Tuxedos, $30 to $55

Trousers, $5 to $12

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT

Our improved system of self-measurement insures perfect fit precisely as if you came here to be measured. We take all responsibility—return anything not satisfactory, and will refund the money. WRITE TO-DAY for catalogue and samples as every garment must be made to measure, and early orders are an advantage to the customer.

WORDS AND MUSIC THROUGHOUT

Songs of All the Colleges

Attractive and durable cloth binding, $1.50 postpaid

New edit. with 104 songs added for 67 other colleges. Over seventy college presidents have actually purchased this volume to have at their own homes, so they tell us, for the students on social occasions. Ten editions have gone into many thousands of homes. If you have a piano but do not play, the PIANOLA and other "piano-players" will play many of these songs for you and your friends to sing

Songs of the Western Colleges

Notable and durable cloth binding, $1.25 postpaid

Songs of the Eastern Colleges

Novel and durable cloth binding, $1.25 postpaid

Ideally complete portrayal of the musical and social side, the joyous side, of the student life in our Western and Eastern colleges respectively. Plenty of the old favorites of all colleges, while crowded with the new songs which are sung—many never before in print. To own all three of above books is to possess the most complete, the most adequate illustration ever attempted of this phase of the genius, the spirit, of Young America

New Songs for College Glee Clubs

Paper, 50 Cents, postpaid

Not less than twenty humorous hits, besides numerous others, sentimental and serious. Not a single selection in this book but has been sung by some glee club locally to the delight of an "encoring audience." Never before published, they are really new

Glee club leaders will appreciate a collection every piece in which, by the severe test of both rehearsal and concert, is right—the musical notation, the harmony of the voice parts, the syllabification, the rhythm, the rhyme, the instrumentation, and last, but not least with audiences, the catchonativeness

Greeting

The Editor-in-Chief wishes to thank Mr. Soule for his aid in compiling histories of the different members of the faculty and Mr. Leonhardt for his aid in arranging and revising proofs, etc.

The Editor of Illustrations wishes to thank Miss Wilfang, Messrs. Goey, King, Keys, Wunderlich, Gerstenberg, Miller and Taylor for the sketches submitted by them and accepted; and Wurtz Bros., Messrs. de Zafra, Siebemann and Lippincott for the photographs of scenes around the College.

IN this, the fourteenth VIOLET, we have endeavored to secure the co-operation of all the different schools of the University, and the following pages will show how well we have succeeded.

We have tried to eliminate from our pages any words which might be a source of unpleasant feeling to any member of the University, and in case any such words have crept in we beg the recipient's indulgence.

Keeping in mind our motto, Perstare et Praestare, we have endeavored to work so that the succeeding VIOLETS may indeed be truly representative of our Alma Mater.

THE EDITORS.

HALL OF FAME.

Editorial

THAT monster, "cold feet," had the Editor of this Department in its meshes when he entered upon his arduous duties. Innovations are all right if they are needed, but, usually, woe to the innovator! So it was with this Department: it was needed.

It was needed just as much as the Chapel Choir was needed a year ago, and, like those poor warblers, someone had to be sacrificed in order that the future might build and improve thereon. The praise for what little success this latest venture has met with should be distributed among Messrs. R. D. Clark, C. de Zafra, L. C. Frees, E. S. Peck, P. Wunderlich, and C. R. Adams, A. E. Stevenson and J. L. Tuthill—these last three being our Associate Editors—who went out of their own paths and departments to help their weaker brother learn how to "paddle his own canoe."

As for the statistics, all the questions were formulated with the sole idea of giving all some slight chance of seeing "themselves as others see 'em." It is to be hoped that no one will feel "sore" if he happens to be the successful candidate for one of the knocking questions. All was done in the spirit of good-fellowship.

In conclusion, the Department wishes to thank the student body, as a whole, for its willingness to aid and bear with us, and its general readiness to give sane answers to the above mentioned questions. We also desire to thank in particular those previously named classmates through whose untiring efforts the Department has had its first faltering footsteps safely guided and strengthened on the way.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Three

UNIVERSITY HEIGHTS was in a fever of excitement. A newcomer had arrived. Yes, it was the freshman class, the Class of 1903. A formidable lot of youngsters were they, from Texas Wilky to Connecticut Earnie.

Immediately we began to make our presence felt, and, as a consequence, the sophomores became less and less in evidence. One night on the Aqueduct they had the effrontery to dispute our supremacy. Result: The sophomore classmen developed such a marked aptitude for study that seldom could one be seen on the campus.

As sophomores, the name of 1903 came to be synonymous with success. A long line of victories—baseball, football, cane rush, relay, track—followed in quick succession, with only the cane-sprees as an exception to prove the rule.

In our Junior year, our activity was extended in other lines with equal success. The splendor of the Junior Promenade, correct in every detail, gave to N. Y. U. a social prominence never before enjoyed. An example was left to succeeding classes in a VIOLET, published on time and without a flaw in any department. This year, 1903 became class champion in both baseball and track.

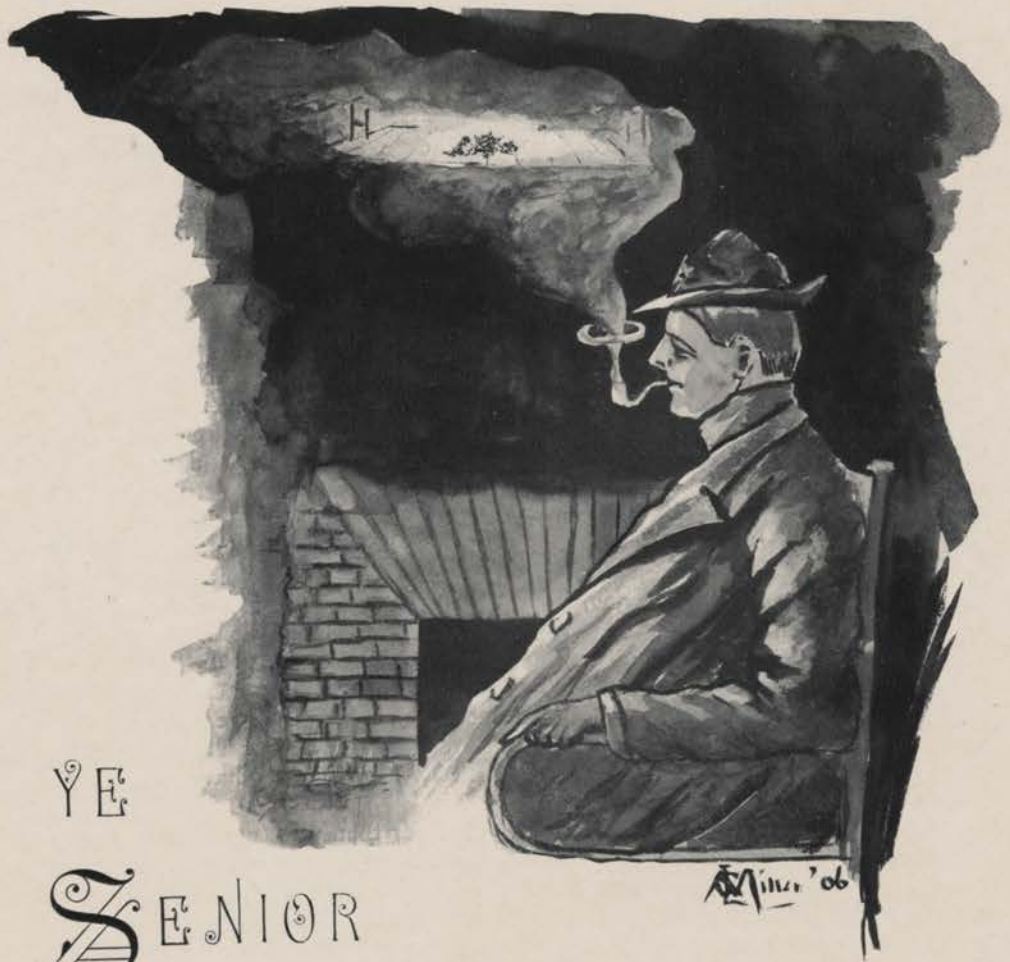

That the much-coveted Bun was presented to us at the end of the Junior year is a just reason for pride. Aside from the honor of being named as "the most popular class in college," it carried with it two other meanings: First, our erstwhile rivals, the Class of 1902, were forced to recognize our worth; secondly, our popularity had not waned when three-fourths of our college course had been completed.

The Class of 1903 has not relied on two or three "star" men to uphold its reputation. Each member has made a record that would have placed him in such position in most other classes. But we have given our services without thought of personal aggrandizement, satisfied that what we have done would reflect to the credit of N. Y. U.

We look forward to this June with sorrow, for then we must sever our active connection with our Alma Mater. It has been a pleasure to uphold her honor, to give our best for her glory. We have seen a remarkable growth of all college activities during the four years of our course, of the credit for which we claim not a small part. The day on which we receive our diplomas and bid our last farewells will mark an epoch in our careers. We go forth to battle with the future; but, however that may be, we shall retain the manly principles for which we have N. Y. U. to thank.

J. J. A., Historian.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Four

A GAIN we make our bow to a collegiate audience, but this time starring under our own management; ambitious, we were not content to be featured as headliners in the shows that 1902 and 1903 have put on, but we must, in emulation of other stars, run our own show and become "actor-managers." This year, therefore, the glorious constellation of the college firmament makes its bow to an admiring audience, offering to it a performance from the stage of its own especially built theatre, THE VIOLET, under its own direction; and for the edification of those interested we enumerate the list of successes which have made us famous, and which have made possible, by assuring us the warm approval of a critical public, this startling-starring-stunt of the world-renowned, unredoubtable, irrepressible aggregation of actors, the constellate Class of 1904, in a sumptuous revival of the old-time success, called "The Junior Year-Book."

From what various schools of acting our first company was recruited, or how it happened that we all ever got together, nobody knows. Suffice it to say that in the fall of 1900 we found ourselves at University Heights, a most cosmopolitan lot, very much disconcerted by the thought of our début on the college stage. But as we grew accustomed to the glare of the footlights and to our public position, our timidity wore off, and we began to be just-a-little proud of our successes. We had shown those self-sustained, sophisticated sophomore barnstormers of 1903 that in 1904 they had fear-inspiring rivals: several times meeting them on one-night stands, we always played to better houses; on one occasion we even routed their orchestra—most of us remember the trouble over the bugle—and all of us remember the cane-sprees. And we were becoming proud, too, of the individual performances of the principals of our cast, whose undisputed ability soon won applause. So, at the end of May, the curtain was rung down on our initial performance, amid the applause of the spectators, including our numerous friends who occupied the "dead-head" seats.

Our second appearance, after a lapse of four months, occurred in October, 1901. Another success to be proud of! And poor 1905, the newly-organized road company! It was almost a shame to abuse the harmless young aspirants to Thespian honors; but then, we needed a field for surplus energies—when not studying our lines—and Father Time, always good to the weak, had carried the 1903 show far along the railroad ties, out of our reach. Even the college theatrical censors, the faculty, realized our supreme power, for in this year they abolished the cane-rush in order that we might not overwhelm the dear little chorus of 1905. But they left us the cane-sprees, and here again we distinguished ourselves, for where, in the annals of N. Y. U., is the management that has produced an all-star cane-sprees team for two successive years? Again the curtain was rung down, and, flushed with success, we decided upon our starring tour.

Lo!—"Here we are again!" Ready to present our chef d'oeuvre! We offer this year an unparalleled cast. Trained in the chorus of the University, 1904 is this year supplied with star captains, managers, and men, from every line of college activity. We need not dilate here on the merits of the performance or of the cast—all will become apparent in the play itself. Souvenir programmes, containing handsome photos, can be had of the ushers between the acts.

* * * * *

The play is over; the curtain falls on our third and greatest effort—loud the applause. The "Epilogue" is sent to the front to respond. And thus he says: "Ladies and gentlemen, on behalf of the Class of 1904 I most heartily thank you for your kind reception. If this portrayal of the achievements of "Naughty-four" seems to you to be a little boastful, please remember that we have but re-enacted for you, authentically, the most striking incidents in our history, and it were false modesty, indeed, for us to hide the truth, merely because that truth is so very much to our credit.

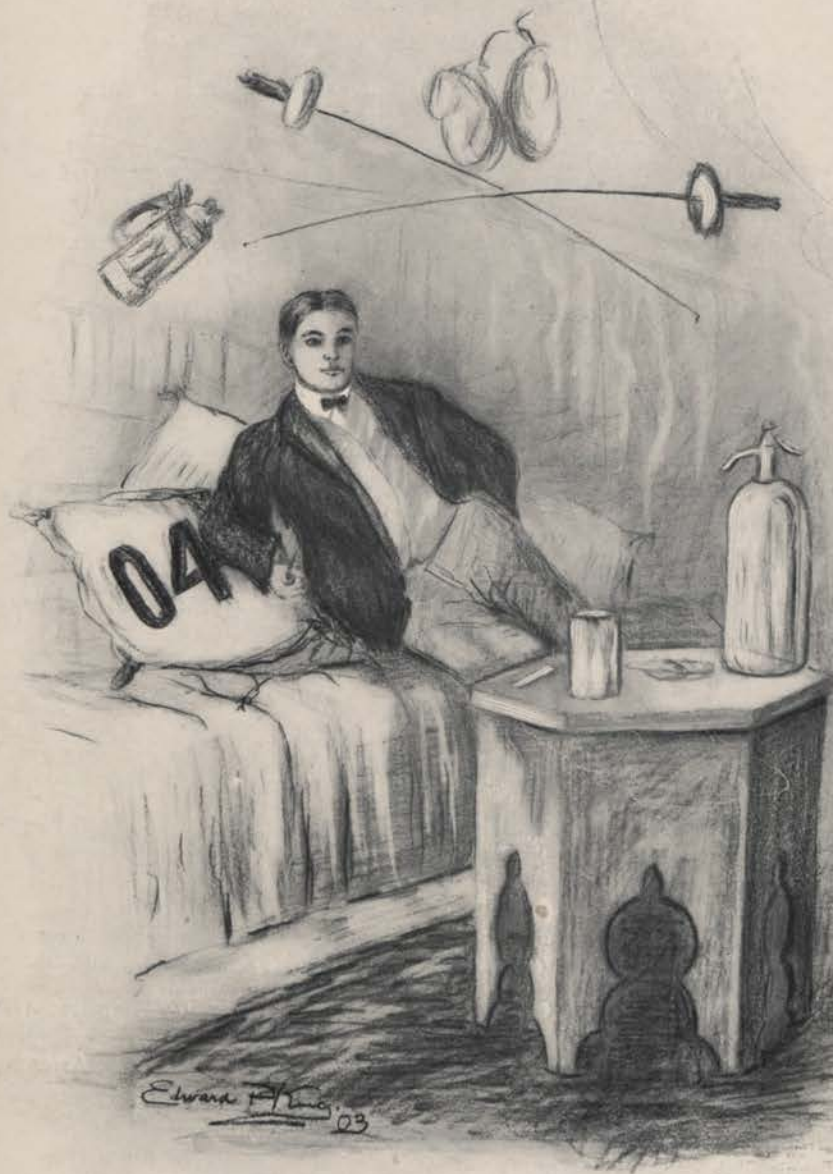

"Again, ladies and gentlemen, 1904 tenders its thanks."

M. J. F., Historian.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Five

HOW it came to pass that in the first year of the century, at the time of the harvest, there came unto the Mount of Knowledge nigh to four-score sturdy young men from far-away parts of the earth—from Yon-kehers, from Gersch, yea, even from Brocilin. And they did strive valiantly against the men of Nineteen-and-four, and did excel them in the kicking of the large leather ball, and in the throwing of the small leather ball, and in running and jumping, and in throwing of heavy weights.* And then did the wise men say that never before had so stalwart a band of youths come to the Mount of Knowledge, and the fame of their deeds spread far and wide.**

And lo! It came to pass that at the beginning of the second year the valiant men of the tribe of nineteen-and-five returned unto the Mount of Knowledge, and once again pursued their various courses of learning; and right gladly did they assemble at the fourth hour to worship in the temple. But when they had heard the words of the priests, and the greeting and precepts of the High Priest Makrakan, they turned and saw also sitting in the temple a motley herd of barbarians, strange and uncouth beings, whom they heard the old men call New-or-Fresh-Men, although their appearance was more like that of children than of men.

And when a few days had passed, and the barbarians were making merry, the men of the Sofamohrs fell upon them and smote them, so that many did dance and howl in their terror.*** And, behold! One night, when all but a few of the mighty Sofamohrs were gathered about their sacred altars,**** the men of the Ger-een-hornes (for so the barbarians were called by many) assembled in a great multitude about the door of a chamber where there were five Sofamohrs gathered in festive enjoyment; but, although they strove to gain entrance, and right stoutly dashed themselves against the portal, it availed them naught, and they withdrew themselves to their own lairs.

Then came the men of the noble tribe of Nineteen-and-five forth from their altars, and called the barbarians, and when they had come, smote them hip and thigh, until the Ger-een-hornes would fain have crawled away and died in peace. And in many conflicts did the Sofamohrs overthrow the barbarians.

And yet did the men of the Sofamohrs not only fight, but also did they sing and dance, and play upon the lute and tabret, and run and excel in races, and in hurling of the discus, and in casting of heavy weights; and all through the year did Rileh, and Drepeh, and Coa, and Peter (which is to be interpreted a Stone), strive against the enemies of the nation of Enn-wi-yoo, and did bring much honor to the nation and to the tribe of Nineteen-and-five.

R. W., Historian.

*The style at this point is highly imaginative.

**Their heads did; their fame—we didn't know they had any.

***Their running propensities in refraining from combat with 1904 were notably in evidence.

****Another side of this story is found in the History of 1906.

NOTE:—From the style of this entire article it can be seen that the Class of 1905 considers itself a "back number."

History of Nineteen Hundred and Six

DURING the summer of nineteen-two, rumors were afloat that the incoming freshman class was to be a "corker." 1904 had metaphorically wiped up the floor with 1905, and, it was whispered, we might surpass even 1904 in this respect. At last our class entered, and it was a "corker"!* So terrified were the Sophs that on the very day college opened they held a meeting and hastily elected their officers. For a few days all was peace and harmony, but one Monday evening the word went round: "05 and 06 will be out looking for each other to-night." The two classes met on Battery Hill. Again and again the Sophomores charged us, but in vain; our lines stood firm as a rock. In despair, 1905 suggested light, middle and heavy-weight wrestling bouts. We agreed, and three more victories stood to our credit. I might mention that earlier in the evening we had captured two Sophomores and given them an impromptu bath in the fountain.** For such gross disrespect they should have annihilated us. But they didn't.*** On another Monday night we sallied forth again to meet the foe. We did get three Sophs, but, yielding to their tearful supplications, we let them go, first "persuading" them to give a cheer for 1906. After vainly waiting until half-past ten for their main body to appear, we dispersed in disgust. Then out came the Sophomores, routed two of our men out of bed, and prepared to duck them. We, however, hastily collected our forces and rescued our classmates.

But who of us will ever forget the Freshman-Sophomore football game? Who will ever forget how MacDowell made two touchdowns by his magnificent forty-yard runs in the last four minutes? And that fight between the halves, in which our class got the ball and kept it! That game, with the capture of the ball, completed the discomfiture of 1905. We waited at the close, expecting another rush, but none came. The Sophomores, disheartened, had no more fight left in them.****

In athletics, 1906 has been well represented. Last fall we had six men on the Varsity team and seven on the Scrub. In this manner five Freshman won their "N. Y. U." We also have a representative on the gym. team. While 1906 averages seven months younger than 1905,***** we excel in weight and height, and in all strength tests.*****

So here's to 1906! May we prosper in the future as we have prospered in the past, and may we live to shed lustre on the name of our Alma Mater.

J. D. S., Historian.

* Their effervescent spirits must have been tightly bottled up, for the upper classmen have had no evidence of their existence.

** Later, 1906 itself had water on the brain.

*** Too bad; a little more doctoring on the part of 1905 might have relieved these precocious children of their enlarged craniums.

**** Both parties seemed willing for peace.

***** It has been noticed that they are especially "kiddish" in general.

***** Note:—In connection with this history, it should be stated that it is a well known fact that children always tend to deviate from the ways of truth.

As We Know Ourselves

CHARLIE "BOB" ADAMS is a backwoodsman, and, like the ordinary "Rube," he talks more than is good for him. Because "Bob" is such a horrible grind, they made him the Grind Editor; but "Bob" has this peculiarity; he tries to do everything and everybody with music. "Bob" never could play on the mandolin, but he became leader of that club just that he might have his name at the head of some note paper. In fact, "Bob" is a good all around bluff. He gasses just to hear himself talk, and can put up such a bluff with the pros that they can't catch on while he's taking courses with them. "Bob" writes stories for the Sunday School Magazine, so you see virtue is his most noted characteristic.

ANDERS AMSTERDAM AMELIA AMARYLLIS ANNIE ANDERSON, who is generally conceded to be the fastest sport in the class, has a record unmarred, except for the fact that he comes from Brooklyn. Next to Andy's sporting propensities, we would rank his hard work. He served three years before the mast to earn the wherewithal to carry him through college. Andy excels in all sports, but is especially noted on "Skies." Hence he is known as the "college skeeter."

WARD "CRAWFISH" BELCHER, OR BLUCHER, is Bristol's pet bug-picker. He hardly counts the first two years at college, because he lived down town with his paternal ancestors. But now—tempora mutaverunt et pater familias lives up the river at Poughkeepsie, and Wardie wanders away sometimes as far as Brooklyn. Ward was awarded the gym. team captaincy at the end of his freshman year, which is an unprecedented honor. It might be thought, from his individual record, that Ward does nothing and is modest, but that is just a bluff he likes to chuck.

RALPH "DE BALLET" CLARKE is an old, old lady, as his name would signify. Early piety was the cause of it all, but times have changed, and—has Ralph changed, too? Ralph, with his friends Wardie and Fizz, have formed a trust to annihilate future generations.*

Ralph does a considerable amount of studying, but is frequently seen walking down on Hampden street as far as Jerome avenue and back, purely for exercise. Some one said he is growing to be a lady-killer—no reference is made to his future occupation.

*They are Prep. Medicals under Bristol.

JOHN "STANDARD" CRANDELL may have been the standard of intellectuality down at C. C. N. Y., where he was incubated, but when he and "Satan" and "Windy" arrived at the Heights, they lost their prominence and are trying to find it now by following the proverb, "Everything comes to him who waits." Johnny tried to be funny in his sophomore year, but found that the C. C. N. Y. humor is N. Y. U. foolishness.

ROBERT "PE-RU-NA" DENIKE's fate is sealed, because he comes from White Plains. Once, and only once, he made a stab to win laurels in the field of athletics. But he ran up against the invincible Upward Bragdon, who beat the pants off and out of him, while Bobby bluffed a faint at the finish. Fur reasons we call him the missing link.

Bobby was chairman of our Freshman dinner committee, and ran things well, generously paying for the pianos and the three tables which the class destroyed. He is real devilish—at least, we think so, and is such an inveterate smoker that he can almost tell the difference between a French briar and a gas pipe.

With My Lord Friedy, CHARLES "WILLIAMSBURG" GERSTENBERG has always been alphabetically and intimately connected. Together they agreed to start a club, where they would have a monopoly of the offices; result, the French Club, or, as they are wont to call it, Cercle Français. As for Charley himself, he comes from New York's bedroom and wears a hat, size 8¾, which he is able to put on with a shoehorn, and then with the greatest difficulty. Gersty is self-elected leader of the Chapel Choir, and offers the admiring students a series of three hymns, Nos. 47, 155 and 225, through Chancy sometimes shows his authority by dealing out No. 45.

EDMUND VERMILLION GREEN BRAGDON is generally known as "Upward V. Balloon," because he's easily set off, and then invariably soars upward in the atmosphere. Statistics from the best yellow almanac authorities show him to be an only child. Eddie once wrested the palm in the half-mile from Bobbie Denike (time, 5:2, vide also Bobbie's history). His dimples are unsurpassed in beauty only by the well-cultivated pair to be seen on the smiling countenance of F. Barnyard Wilcox.

"EXCELSIOR" CABALLERO comes only when you call "Cabby." He is an accomplished linguist, and, together with his friend Guty, acts as a walking crib for all of Billy's Spanish courses. After wasting some time in Lehigh, West Virginia, and other universities, Cabby arrived at the Heights, and at present intends to become a landmark.

If we could understand Cabbage English, we might give a more exhaustive history, but so much for the present.

N. B.—He is said to be Abram's brother. They both come from Spain.

O!!! "BERTIE" CARLSON was built for an acrobat, but missed his calling. He has ridden some of Brooklyn's finest horses (bronze, Sihlurian, etc.), as can be seen from the graceful curves of his legs. Being an Erasmian, he is necessarily a heart-breaker. Although his name is similar, he disclaims any relationship to "Pop" Carsten, and is prepared to bear out this statement with the little tomahawk which he carries concealed about his person.

CYRILLE CARREAU, widely known as "Cass" or "Castoria." He and "Solly" Moss came from the same school—Chapin's. Poor boys, we must humor them. We know no more of their pasts. "Cass" has a specialty of telling the most barefaced lies and swearing to their truth; while "Pib" Moss tells lies which seem to have every essence of veracity. Cyrille is running the glee club this year, and, judging from the new suit he is wearing and the scarf pin he sports in his "Kaiser beratha," we think the glee club is a success for once. "Cass" is a born talker of the "now-and-then" dialect. Some folks are speakers, others think and talk; "Cass" simply talks, or goes through the mechanical motion of speaking. If he were a mute, and used his hand only

"ST. LOUIS ECLAIRE" EUNSON, even as a nursling, showed a remarkable tendency for travel. At three he was content to place a chair in the middle of the nursery and walk around it all day; at ten he would walk around the house for hours; later, he walked around the town; and finally he walked around the earth, never suspecting that his journey was a ruse of the Journal to get around the World.

To see him on the campus, you would hardly believe him the wonderful ocean climber which the Journal termed "a good little boy." "Yon" raced around the world against time, and made the circuit in the remarkable time of 2.20—years.

LOUIS C. FREES. That's his name. The "C" must stand for Croker, because he's a spellbinder and a would-be politician. He openly confesses that he's a Tammany man, and seems proud of it! That's why we suspect he may be mentally unsound. So much energy did he use during the last campaign that he hasn't found time to write up his own history. All Louis now does is to wear his hat on one side, talk politics, and smoke cigars—on the appearance of which it is time to move out.

MY LORD "JIM" FRIEDBERG. Our Friedy is one of those miscreations which "Pshaw" says had a "swell" front and a southern "exposure." He knows all about the stage, from Miner's to the Murray Hill, and will doubtless end up as a scene shifter at the Dewey or the Olympic. He weighs only  $35\frac{1}{4}$  pounds, but is not at all obese. Friedy would have been bounced out of college ere this but for two reasons—first, the faculty, in doing the kicking, would have hurt their feet; second, "Chesty" appointed him to collect Violet Vs.

"CARLOAD" DE ZAFRA was cut out to direct the maneuvers of a naval squadron in some great battle, but, finding no chance to destroy anything at sea, he has trained his sixteen-inch guns on the college literary magazine, which has exploded in consequence. Rumor now has it that he will make the Triangle his next victim. During the interim he is practising his talents on the gym. team. The Don succeeded in having the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Meet held at the Heights for the second time, so this excuses him from further criticism.

"POP" CARSTEN:—Once there was a youth, Adept Adolph by name. His supreme ambition was to gain a political sinecure, so that he could indulge in an extravagant propensity for smoking bum stogies like "Croker" Frees smokes. Adolph has the political pull and the full corporeal qualifications necessary for the police force. Once there, nothing will stop him from being a second M. Aurelius Hanna. Last year he worked out the campaign of the losing party in his native town successfully, and in the near future "Dolph" will enjoy the reward for this, for he is to be appointed conductor on one of the principal trolley lines in that enterprising city, Hoboken.

"FIGHTING JOE" GIBB is an all-around winner and the only real devilish fellow in his class. He has been popular ever since he preached, from the bleachers, his famous sermon on the evils of fighting, after our first engagement with the then Sophomores. He entered into the cane-rush with an unquenchable spirit, and came out with his glasses on. Like Cass Carreau, his greatest fault is his talkativeness, and they are frequently seen conversing on Chancy's latest sermon or the last French novel.

Untamed by any of the laws of nature, "MIKE" GUTTERIEZ came up from Cuba three years ago, and made things hum for a while. "Gutty" did stunts especially in the gym., and when "1901" wanted a monkey for its Senior Show, "Mike" was the first one discussed. Next to "Eddie Ral," Gutty was the noisiest man in the class in those early days, but he is toning down now. He and his friend "Cabby" have been called the "Heavenly Twins." When one comes into view the other is sure to follow. The Twins helped win our second and greatest cane-spree. Whenever anything wild-and-woolly, or fool-hardy, or a "rough house," is determined upon, "Gutty" and "Cabby" are always in the fore.

"FREDDIE" REID HEATH is a high-minded individual—he lives in a skyscraper—and has a tendency toward humor. Like "Bob" Adams, his worst sin is his excessive talkativeness, but Freddie isn't one of the regulars (he's just an engineer, and, as such, rational characteristics are at a discount). A noticeable feature about the misguided youth is that his headgear is almost as flat as some of his jokes. Some say he is therefore a flat head, others say he is soft, but we only will add that it takes all kinds of man to make the world.

ELLIOTT "TREMONT" SOULE, JR., is like the Sphinx—could live for centuries and never say a word. He lives in Tremont, where dwell the two extremes—all talk, exempli gratia, Billy Orr, and no talk. Elly won his class numerals for playing on the class base ball team. He also plays tennis, and has even been known to beat Carlson—that must have been long ago, for of late he has become so stout that you are unable to see through him any more.

ARCHIBALD "YOUNG THING" STEVENSON, or, better, "Son Archie," is a real pretty child—so pretty, in fact, that in the gym. exhibitions when Archie does his stunt they always turn out the lights so that the girls won't lose their hearts on him. Besides beauty, Archie possesses a talent—a real, live talent. He writes poetry—or what he calls poetry. It must be good, for its meaning is hidden so deep in bad-spelled words that it can't be found—two of the necessities of good poets' poetry. But when Archie becomes a man, let us hope he will put away childish things.

"BOB MARQUIS"—pronounced "Markey"—STRONG has recently returned from a trip abroad to learn the German language. Formerly he mixed too much English with his scant knowledge of German; now his language is personal and peculiar. He has to have an interpreter to tell him what he is saying, and even then he admits that he must be twisted. Bob is a Californian by birth, and by nature—well, we must consider his people, who are to peruse these lines. Bob has gained eternal fame by his expert comprehension of Sibir's language, orations and jokes.

"RADWAY READY RELIEF" SHINN entered with our class, but thought four years was too much to waste in college, so taking a running jump landed in '03. He has since conceded that he made a grave error, and still considers himself our classmate. Shinn is a minister, but that does not interfere with his getting ads. for the Triangle.

While "GAWGE CHOLLY" HORWOOD claims no relationship to "Sunny Jim," he is the mortal image of "Jim Dumps." He is a hobo from Hoboken, but that is not his only misfortune. He is a debater of almost convincing ability, talks mostly with his hands, accompanied by a shower of rain proceeding from a hole in his face, which is calculated to drown or shrink all contrary arguments. Another symptom of the incurable disease which has taken possession of him is that he believes himself to be the only original "female charmer." Eminent specialists (e. g., Dr. Moss) have said there is some hope for the girl or boy. His parents have our deepest sympathy.

"EDDY PERCIVAL" KING has real blonde hair, which, if the property of a maiden, would be classed as peroxide; in his case we'll call it hay. Eddie also paints. We don't mean he uses "department store beauty." He only does water colors. When he arrived here he knew so much more than the professors that he could not make their untutored minds understand the meaning of his deep utterances. But now, thanks to his patience, they are beginning to learn something.

JERRY "ARNICA" KOHN, or, as he is better known, "Sunny," was afflicted with heart disease in his Freshman year, which prevented his taking part in the cane-rush, but later his excellent running qualities came to the fore—not that he ever captured a Soph, or, later, a Fresh, but he can say with veracity he was never caught in a running fight. When he was a child he did as a child, naturally, but he has since developed. Jerry made the Philadelphia relay team. One thing Jerry has to his credit—though he never wins, he is hardly ever worse than last.

"CHESTY HUMORIST" (?) LANE floated in from a place called New Germantown, and thought he was the real thing—by the way, he has not yet quite gotten over this. He started in immediately to show his worth, and before the football season was half over, he could be seen with his "N. Y. U." on his necktie, shoe laces and pocket handkerchiefs. Then he entered the gym; next, track athletics fell before him; last year, he upset the crew; in fact, there is nothing except baseball he hasn't tried. No wonder he wears the letters on all his clothes. We are all proud of him, and can bear his minor faults—New Jersey humor, for example—at all times when he is not touching us for money.

SOL "DARE" MOSS—undoubtedly a diminutive imitation of Solitaire—is supposed to be able to run fast enough to keep himself from gathering his namesake. "Pibby" has informed us that he has stupendous shoulders, and his tailor makes this information seem true. "Castoria" Carreau and this specimen with the ginger-snap shoulders are often seen giving each other advice on the theory of running. Sol loves to be heard, and is never "not prepared" to give a game of talk to the "profs." Of late, he has become famous for his ability to throw "coppers," and ask him about these envelopes of blue. He has developed a far-away look. She is reported a beauty and the announcement cards are to appear as soon as she gets her diploma.

N. B.—He is also a member of the illustrious 10:30 Club.

"MIKE" JOHN O'NEILL is a Roxburyian—nevertheless, Roxbury has produced some great men. About once a month Mike essays to produce a moustache, and when it gets as far as the nail-file class it disappears. One day, when his head was bowed down by the weight of the hair on his chin he had a chemical solution to analyse, and all the following night Mike strolled or wandered over the campus, looking for a white precipitate. In fact, he was so preoccupied that he didn't know that there was a football celebration on that night.

"EDDIE STEW" PECK. "Stew" is a little white-headed, red-faced boy that any father ought to be proud of. Some say that he is a second cousin to Richard Peck, the boat, but it hardly does justice to the boat to make such a statement without being able to present absolute proof. However, there is a little resemblance when it comes to looks.

"Booze," as he is sometimes called, is a good business man. He verified this statement when he published the N. Y. U. Calendar for this year. They sold for one dollar, made a good Christmas present, and the edition was limited, just as he advertised. Though the edition was limited, the number of students that bought them was more than limited, so "Booze," like a cheap advertisement, "got stuck" on the calendars.

GEORGE, COUNT VON PROCHAZKA, has been given the more prosaic nickname of "Pro." George has done lots of things. At present he is doing the gym team. He is a hard worker, and although he is a "ringer," the consensus of opinion is that he is a bird when he does the "Maltese-triple-side-cut-off." At all exhibitions he does this stunt on the rings, and then retires amid bouquets and applause. Let the good things come first, for, in after life, he'll either wield a pick or shovel, or will hire out in Woolsey's Gaelic legion, chasing after the almighty guinea. Nothing more is to be expected of an engineer.

WALTER "CLAYPIPE" LEONARD has something to do with this knocking section, so we must use our imaginations with impunity. He has some good points, but they are not in his puns. There are two kinds of puns—"Walt's" and good ones. We do hate to concede that innate ability carries him through his courses. Perhaps he keeps a stable; possibly he understands legerdemain. "Walt" commits the unpardonable offence of posing as a singer. Well, Carreau wants to keep in with him till the VIOLET is in print. He is a terrible fusser; once he flirted with a well-dressed turkey and got stuffed. But say, "Walt," do you bring a different cousin up to every affair at the Heights? It's expensive to have a numerous family. How do you manage not to mix your dates?

N. B.—He is also a member of the illustrious 10:30 Club.

"ERNIE" WALTER LEONHART is often mistaken for that other "Looney" who precedes him alphabetically, but if you are wise don't let him know you think there is any resemblance. That's his touchy point, and we don't blame him. Ernie is a shark in Math. and Mechanics, and thinks some day of taking Pom's place on the Faculty. When he and "Carload De Yap" got after the Marine Engineering course, they sank the ship and drove one professor out of college. So you see he is at least good for something. Why didn't he take a course with Larry?

LANSING "YAP" LIPPINCOTT, or "Ma Lip," is eminently the slowest man in college, or, in fact, that ever was born and he has been named "Procrastinator." His chief occupation at present is collecting cats, tadpoles, centipedes etc. for use in the Bristology courses. One of his most important duties is feeding the 'Varsity goldfish. He is a bum banjoist, a fierce football player, and an erratic editor of the Triangle. It would hardly be proper to write Lip's history without mentioning his finely chiselled features, especially the mouth (where the chisel slipped and made a gash).

ROBERT GEORGE MERZ. Robbie's chiefest love is books, and, like "Skeeter Anderson," he is the real thing on all things Engineering. That is the one thing he is said to do to perfection. He doesn't say much, but is always ready to give aid to his friends in distress. They say that heavy students are the more susceptible to the charms of the other sex. Mayhap Robbie George also is a lady-killer.

"EDDIE A. B. C. D. E. F., etc.," RALDIRIS is the embodiment of college and class spirit. He has a striking personality, as many of those in the classes above and below can swear to. Eddie believes in the water cure for lower class men, for when he was commander of the victorious forces of '04 the enemy suffered from one of two diseases—frozen pedal extremities or water on the brain. "Ral" would never stay on the earth at all if his feet weren't heavy; anything will set him off "up in the air," and then "he'll say more in a minute than he'll stand to in a month." At the time of the Freshman-Sophomore Joint Peace Conference, Eddie was going to whip the whole crowd. He stands a good show of becoming a ward politician, so "hitch on," all ye who want a job.

"FREDDIE ALBANY" RUSSELL blows down from Tarrytown with his cousin. The pair have minds with a single thought, and hearts that beat as one. Freddie travels to Albany whenever he gets a chance (day off), and for a week afterward he doesn't sigh. It is said he sighs too much for his size. He is found two or three evenings a week using the long distance telephone. We wonder why? But, to put joking aside, "Spi" (don't call him "Spider"; he doesn't like it) has nerve, as was evidenced when he won the cane-spreed for us. He intends to become a lawyer, and some day we may expect to hear him swaying multitudes with his eloquence and his "factory-whistle-tenor" tones in the "Town hall" which Tarrytown expects to build in a short time.

N. B.—He is also a member of the illustrious 10:30 Club.

"BEN FRANKLIN" SAXON is another ministering angel, and is the direct antithesis of the other dominie, "Doc" Johnson, in his corporeal qualifications. He carries as much weight as "Friedy," and a voice of a quality almost as melodious (?) as "Carry" Waters. Ben Franklin makes us a regular weekly visit, and at these times the members of Sihler's class give a sigh of relief, for Ben, once started translating, will not be shut off until someone gets the cardinal's valet to tinkle the bell. Ben has agreed to help anyone who wants to be tied for better or worse, so here, fellows, is your chance!

"BOBBIE" A. SIEBENMAN, alias "Tanglefoot," is the exception to the rule of Harlem inhabitants in one respect. He has long legs, which is the more notable when we know he was raised in a flat. He is not a goat, even if he does use goat English. "Bob" is a runner just because his feet can cover more ground than any one else's, with the possible exception of "Ma" Lippincott. He confesses that his shoes are 17 X plus. Among his other defects, "Sibbie" possesses an illusionary moustache (now you see it—Presto—it's gone), but for fear of forever prejudicing public opinion against him, the rest will be left unsaid.

"WALLY MAN DEVIL" SILLECK came from Barnard, and his whole attention seems centered there. Still, we have heard he belongs to the "dirty dozen." We don't know much about this, but we do know he belongs to Bristol's "soiled few." Walt carries the apparatus, Wardie sets it up, Lip expounds the theory, and "The Old Lady" does the work. There is nothing Walt likes better than "goirls"—indeed, he is the only original "fusser" in the bunch. Rumor has it that Walt once was actually caught working. It must have been near exam. time when Walt was working some poor prof. with somebody else's notes. Walt hasn't had a "con" this year. He has learned the way, and become wise.

JOHN PAUL SIMMONS hails from Yonkers; therefore he is allowed more peculiarities than the ordinary mortal. Like the John Paul of old, he is ashamed of his name, so we call him "Bob." Bob's worst fault is that he is an engineer, but he is a peculiar one. He is never seen outside of the chemical laboratory during hours. It is said that he is there attempting to make a chemical analysis of baseball curves. "Bobbie" is Captain of the team, and as he made one hit last year he wants to repeat. We have heard that Bob refused to play with the League teams because they are not in our class. That's right; make 'em get a reputation.

"STEVIE MAUD" SMITH is another of those mortals who says nothing but saws wood. Early in his career he became the rival of Archie Stevenson in club swinging—he only lacked Archie's good looks and form. Next he dropped into the Tennis Club, and soon, by his methods of strenuous silence, rose to the presidency of that organization. "Steve" and "W. Claypipe Lenny" can't be "beat" for pure gall. By bluff they are on the musical clubs, to the exclusion of those who do know something about music.

JOHN FRANKLIN SNOW doesn't come around much, and, as he seems to be a personal friend of Prof. Johnson, is not over popular here at the heights, but we have heard that he runs the Commerce School to suit himself; therefore he must have some good points. If you want to know more about him, look in the Commerce Department.

JAMES GEORGE TAYLOR, or, as he is more widely known, "Barney," can do one thing to perfection, and that is, use ultra-emphatic slang. To say "cuss" would be vulgar. Barney plays base ball, or, at least, plays at it. Some folks say that he has been known to study, but if this is true it must have happened while he was attending Notre Dame. Jimmy is doing better now, because he's got a brother in the Freshman class.

JOHN L. TUTHILL is a hayseed from Orange County. It is unnecessary to say that he is named after a renowned pugilist, for whose profession he has great respect. He has acquired a marvelous degree of efficiency in two lines of college activity, viz., debating and football. He's captain of the latter team, and his impromptu, extemporaneous speeches ever and anon win for him applause as a public speaker. We may conclude by saying that his only virtue is laziness.

N. B.—He is also a member of the illustrious 10:30 Club.

"CARRY DEVIL" WATERS travels around the campus wearing simply a deep voice and the smile-that-never-comes-off. We say travels—his walk is the arithmetical mean of the trot of an ostrich and lope of a camel. Some people think Carry is lazy, but they are wrong; he really hasn't energy enough to be lazy. Carry chucks a bluff that he lives in Ossining, but we have subsequently discovered that he is a boarder at the State Hotel at Sing Sing. His attachment for the place is marked with Varsity stripes, which he has won because of his taking characteristics.

N. B.—He is also a member of the illustrious 10:30 Club.

"OOM PAUL" WUNDERLICH—known as Windy,—is a real pretty boy, and, on reaching the heights from C. C. N. Y., was immediately beloved by his classmates for his bright smile and winning ways. His motto is, "Say nothing and look pleasant." But a man is known by the company he keeps, and as Windy will not shake "Carry Devil" or "Freddy Albany," you see, he can never do anything wonderful where they are known.

ROSS YOUNG—yes, he's a son of Palestine. You might deduce therefrom that he is virtuous—but nuff said. Ross started in with 1903, but finding his mistake, he played sick a year, to get into the right bunch. Ross laughs and the world laughs with him, and as he stands well with the political machine, he can't help being popular. He is very unpopular with the ladies, though. (He asked us to say this, so as to put him right with the girls in Texas, on the Silvery Rio Grande.)

DAVIS is a minor, or miner, we don't know which; at any rate, he is a wanderer on the face of the earth, having visited Leland Sanford, Jr., and two or three other Universities. Thus he is eligible to "Cabby's" class.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Four

WING to the innumerable achievements of the Class of '04, the historian finds great difficulty in writing the class history in the short space allotted him.

For their accomplishments, as well as their beauty, the ladies of our class stand pre-eminent in a school where brilliancy and learning have ever reigned. It is not unreasonable to prophesy that in the near future some of them will occupy seats on the "wool sack" in a court to which an appeal from the United States Supreme Court may be taken.

A claim to all the forensic talent in the Law School would not become our modesty, but we enter a general denial to the existence of any outside of our class. The stentorian clamors of the mighty BERG, though not always classic and sound of argument, will be forever remembered. BROWN, the authority on parliamentary questions, who, in the parlance of the street, has Cushing and Roberts "skinned to death," stands alone in his ability to raise points of order. The stern CÆSAR, a student of Demosthenes, but not of Rome, when supported by the smiling KELLER, not of France, form a team who, in debate, add glory to the institution.

For men with great political futures before them, we challenge any class to equal FORD, LEAVITT, LEVY, and STURTZ, and the suggestion to the Legislature to employ them to reform the existing Australian Ballot Law would not be amiss.

As to our finances, we respectfully refer to the banking firm of FLECK, HERTZOG and KATZMAN, with offices in the smoking room. They may be seen daily diligently engaged in the study of Uncle Sam's currency. J. Pierpont—beware!

"Grandpa" OGLESBY should be appointed as an assistant to the Faculty, in order that future classes may have the benefit of his "timely suggestions." Their efficiency is well demonstrated by the improvements shown in ROMER, STELL and LUM.

Theorists JACOBS and PASCAL have succeeded in clearing points in the law of contracts which have been acknowledged as of great value to court and practicing lawyers, and the suggestion of the Dean that they write a new treatise on this subject is being carried out.

The names of CONANT, FOOTE, GROSSMAN, SMITH, OAKES, RYAN, KLEINER, and KOSTER are synonymous with "par excellence."

Overcoming and reconstructing the erroneous work of the seniors in the matter of class organization was a feat accomplished by our members which, upon high authority, was pronounced as impossible of performance by "any power under heaven." The survival of the fittest left to us the genial and impartial GRIFFIN, whose decisions are unbiased, and under whose guidance the class is bound for the haven of glory and success

History of Nineteen Hundred and Three

THERE has been served on me a notice to produce a document both valuable and interesting, the history of the illustrious University Law Class of Ninety-three. Of this, it is more difficult to find an end than a beginning, for the beginning has already been set forth surpassing well by Herodotus Knetzer and Thucydides Morgenthau in volumes one and two of this series, while the end is not yet.

However, to chronicle the beginning of the end, October, 1902, saw us start on our third, best, last cruise under the shadow of the purple pennant, and we've been sailing in the Legal Smart Set ever since. Equity was the only friend we had on board, but Equity treated us royally,—made us feel at home with everybody and everything,—Partnership, Corporations, and even Evidence, the most exclusive thing we knew. As for Bills and Notes, they have always been more or less on deck, following us up and making us show our tickets at the gang-plank, besides helping us to understand Sommer and Kenneson, and this year they've pursued us even more persistently than before, and we think it's owing to them that our Third Year stateroom has been so draughty. Prof. Tompkins very kindly furnished us additional security in the way of some life preservers; he found we couldn't catch on to negotiable paper without George Ade, and if it hadn't been for his successful kindergartening, Neuwirth would probably have lost his life when he was swept overboard by the proposition that "The commercial interests of the country must be protected."

The voyage has been full of incident, to relate all of which would take up more than our allotted space. While there have been some storms, yet, it's almost always fair weather when good fellows get together, and through the help of one or another, we've always thus far come out of the depths onto the top wave. Many a time Cantrell's cheery smile steered us through the blue waters; often has Father Wall's priestly presence pointed out an elevator to higher spirits; frequently it has been Sheridan's familiarity and free and easy ways with the English chancellors that rescued us from the rancorous reefs of perfidious professional praise; Captain Groehl it was who could always be depended on to clarify the hazy facts of a case, and where the intellectual fog hung thickest, 'twas always Oren who shone through the blackness like an Aurora Borealis raised to the nth power, and guided us across the trackless legal and equitable waste, while in the effulgent light gleamed with equal brilliancy the four inseparables, Strong, Houston, Bostwick, and Maddock, planets of the first magnitude.

One Friday night in November we felt we needed a little relaxation, so we washed our hands clean, and knowing that between equal equities priority of time will prevail, seized Pater Tempus by the forelock, and acted specifically in personam (in personam of Prof. Kenneson), with the result that Equity looked upon that as done which ought to be done, and followed the Law—to Carnegie Hall, where a majority of the class and some of the Faculty enjoyed a musical treat through the generosity of a N. Y. U. alumna who was giving a concert there.

On the heels of this festivity closely followed a second—our Thanksgiving tally-ho trip to City Island. This was replete with incidents to which only the epic pen of a Burnkrant could do justice, so I shall only refer to the weather that day, and what it led up to—the famous lawsuit through which we were successfully piloted by our own home-made attorney, Ringel, the worthy follower of Counsellor Bretzfelder, our first member to cross the bar. In this connection one must not forget that other suit threatened by our spirited and winning Bloom against the fascinating Morgenthau for his conversion of the charming personal(i)ty Bloom had brought with him, nor yet the subsequent materializing of MacDonough's sisters. Did Knetzer remark that he wished one of them might have remained a disembodied spirit?

After this we plodded for a space on both sides of the Christmas holidays. Keller put in some telling work in a will case, and subpoenaed a testator to prove his own will. Doran kept at it with Murphy and the Tiger, and, after deep research, discovered a New York authority on bills and notes given for usurious consideration. Babe Kahn resolved to wait for his degree till he had crossed the bar. Sturm as a presidential promoter proved a decided success. Dame Rumor has it that our virtuoso, Weiss, now bids fair to outrival Kubelik in amorous as well as musical celebrity, and that O'Keefe has become so attached to the library that there is some danger of his become an accession to the N. Y. U. realty. During this period, too, the voice of Speaker Lewis was stilled forever, for he was buried beneath the waves while on a joint fishing venture with Levy and Tausch; the latter, clinging to their upturned skiff, were blown shoreward and left to battle with the breakers.

Thus we toiled till Valentine's Day brought a welcome break, and we made merry together at a dinner and dance at the Hotel Vendôme, our penultimate celebration before we bid farewell to the "Shallows that murmur," and greet the "Deaths that are dumb," for but one frolic more is left us, our last class dinner. Until then and Commencement Day the closing chapter of our history must remain unwritten, for the Spring is but just now with us, though the gloomy shadows of coming events are lengthening, though the end is in view, and though we can hear the moaning of the bar as April fools put out to sea.

"Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness or farewell,
When we embark."

History of Nineteen Hundred and Four

T was on October 1st, in the year of grace 1901, that we first came together. We assembled at the University Building, a band of raw recruits, to be initiated into the mysteries of the law, filled with a desire to know something of that body of written and unwritten rules which govern our relations as between man and man, and between man and State. A desire such as that is a worthy one, and is to be commended, and, having come together with a commendable desire, we started right.

In a country such as ours, where Government of the People, by the People, and for the People, is the very foundation stone upon which its vast political system is built, it is altogether proper and necessary that the body of people who are to govern themselves should know somewhat of the rules and the spirit of the rules which govern each in his relation to the Government, and in the relation of each to the other. Such a knowledge at least fits the man to perform the high duties which are thus thrust upon him as a citizen, and makes him worthy the name of citizen.

The men who enroll themselves as students in an evening school, whatever the branch of knowledge that may be taught, are, with few exceptions, found to be sincere, industrious and earnest. This is especially true of those who come to study law. For the law is a most laborious subject to study, and for the amount of labor bestowed, the results are very small. The amount of reading it is necessary for the student of law to do is almost appalling. In many instances it is necessary to read a volume for the purpose of abstracting one legal principle,—to separate the one kernel of wheat from the bushel of chaff. Yet if one were to tell the learned gentlemen who sit upon the woolsack that much that they write by way of opinion in cases which come before them is chaff, they would feel highly offended. Such being the fact, it requires constant reading in order faithfully to pursue the study. This is evidenced by the remarks of some of our ablest jurists. Lord Ellenborough printed and kept before his eyes, "Read or Starve." John Scott, afterwards Lord Chancellor, said in reply to Wilberforce, who asked the elements of success in a lawyer: "He must live like a hermit and work like a horse." Rufus Choate worked his constitution out, and he quaintly remarked, "I am living on my by-laws." It is said that Matthew Hale, while a student of law, worked sixteen hours a day.

While many of them labor for fully sixteen hours out of the day, that time is not entirely devoted to the study of law, as those who study law evenings are engaged in active business during the day, and the few hours that can be safely withheld from those allotted by nature for rest are devoted to the study of law. These men work earnestly and industriously, and frequently turn the few hours at their disposal to such good account that those who have more leisure, but less industry, are frequently put to shame.

Such are the men of this class. Their watchword is "Work." The history of such men as these can best be told by their watchword; and it is to be hoped that by reason of that watchword, each will figure laudably in a history wider in its scope than this.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Five

IN obedience to a mandatory injunction issued by a court of competent jurisdiction ordering me to produce a history of the Class of '05 in the hallowed pages of the VIOLET, now, therefore, with the aid of the muse Clio, I herewith present the following veracious and modest account of the doings and misdoings of the said class as its true, unadorned history.

Naughty Five first saw the light (incandescent light) in Law Room 1, Washington Square East, on the evening of October 1st, 1902. Singly and in groups, the members to be had passed, with trepidation and with evident awe, the elevator boys, the Cerberuses who guard the entrance to the cars, whose good fortune it is to "help the young idea to soar." Seven flights were reached and passed. Another floor, and the magic word "SUCCESS" suddenly loomed into view, and as soon was left behind. The unexpected sight of an oasis in a barren desert to a weary, heavily-laden caravan could not be a pleasanter welcome than was the sight of this good omen to the souls panting with a desire to know and to achieve. Without its day-dreams of Success, Youth would be a barren desert. Success is life's oasis.

From the very first moment of their acquaintance with Naughty Five, the Professors have been aware of the fact that no preceding law class has ever equalled it for ability and knowledge. No preceding law class (Evening) can point to as many brilliant exponents of legal lore; of as fair votaries of justice; of one hundred and twenty men and two women imbued with as deep a love and reverence for the doctrines of Blackstone and Kent.

Shortly after the year had begun we were reminded by various pseudo-politicians of the fact that we had a duty to perform, and that—the duty of forming a class organization. After several meetings, which were fair imitations of County Fairs in Ireland, with the expenditure of a vast amount of energy, the endangering of the personal property of the University, the aid and assistance of the various janitors, the restraining influence of Professor Tompkins, and the forensic oratory of the coming Edmund-Burke-Patrick-Henry,—Mr. Charles P. Kelly, the preceding list of officers was elected.

Elections over, Naughty Five settled down to burning the midnight oil in its hunt for knowledge, and to dancing on the roof in between the lecture periods.

That our class will develop many legal lights goes without saying. There is an undiscovered Blackstone in Mr. David Blick, in whose mind was formulated the distinction between personalty and realty as regards houses. It is he who says, "Give me a couple of horses, and I will move the World Building." And since a thing of this nature is so easily accomplished, "therefore," says he, "houses and personalty." It is plainly evident that he is destined to become the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals. Then let me not forget to mention Mr. Jacob Bernstein, whose pronunciation of Pro-fes-sor (accent on the "sor") has made him famous. Mr. Herman McCarthy, who is a firm believer in predestination, says that he is destined to become a City Court Judge, as is his father.

In Naughty Five, Messrs. Catts the Stout, Johnson, Cahill, Tipple, Dixon and McCarthy, are the Court of Last Resort for brilliant replies when the thoughts of the rest of the class go wool-gathering.

There is a knight-errant among us whose proudest boast is "Give me a proposition, and I will argue any side of it." How often has he taken up the cudgels in defense of justice, with our Professors, and how often has he worsted them in debate. This gentleman is none other than Mr. Martin Catts. Naughty Five is proud to have the "greatest man that N. Y. U. ever knew" in its midst.

To say the least, Naughty Five is proud of itself, of its professors, and, above all, of N. Y. U.

Let me conclude this history with the words of the poet whose efforts have often been plastered on our bulletin boards:

"If you're gettin' kind o' chesty,
Rather tight across your vesty,
At the thought of other classes you have known;
Then as sure as you're alive
You will surely change your tone
If you run across the class of 'Naughty Five'."

History of Nineteen Hundred and Five

"Assume a virtue, if you have it not, and admire yourself."

GREAT deeds should live after those who do them! Great lives should become living monuments, growing mightier and mightier in the memories of ever increasing posterity! But it frequently happens that "the evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." It is to avert so unhappy an occurrence that the Class of '05 (Medics) resorts to a history, and employs an historian.

In the life of every institution of professional learning, the entrance of a new class is an incident of great significance. It is to the incoming class that the welcome of the institution is extended. It is in this class that the hope, the confidence and the pride of the institution is rested.

The incoming of our class was not merely an incident of ordinary significance. It was an event of epoch-making importance to the school and the profession. Gathered from all parts of the country—the North and South, and East and West (as far as polygamous Utah); men of all sizes and ages; beardless and bearded men; brainy men; bald heads and "swell heads"; boy wonders and other kinds of prodigious curios; the most and the best that any one generation can offer—constitute the rank and file of our class. It is with material such as this that the ideal of medical education can be realized. It is in a class such as ours that men possess the power of wielding the minds and juggling with the individualities of others. It is in our class that men dare point out the faults of the Profs, and make them apologize for their errors. It is a class such as ours that can inspire all freshmen with awe and respect, whose very presence can move freshmen to tears. It is in our class that men know how to teach the hitherto unknown maxim of "live and let live" in the medical profession.

Our career at college has been as yet but brief—only of two years' duration; but our doings have been many and great. We hold no mean share in the glory of the football victories of last year. So far, our class has had the most successful and interesting series of physiological conferences. It is our class that in the first year of its existence carried off the medals in anatomy; and this year, too, there is every reason to believe that the prizes will fall to our lot. There are men in our class who, for the sake of science, offer themselves to experimentation.

Thus we hold sway in every branch of learning, excel in every direction, active in every extremity—head, arm and foot. We make ourselves known—so all those who know us will tell you. We make ourselves heard and seen—so, too, will all those who have ever heard or seen tell you. We leave an impression on every one (ask the freshmen), we make our mark on everything (inquire into the state of the furniture). We simply cannot stand comparison.

A. A. E., Historian.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Six

IF a stranger had happened to drop in at the North Lecture Room on the afternoon of February 25th, at about three o'clock, he probably would have concluded from the outside appearance of most of those he found gathered there, that he had come upon an assembly of either hod-carriers or street-cleaners. It was nothing more nor less, however, than the first meeting of the Class of '06, the majority of its members being dressed in the picturesque gowns of the dissecting room. The meeting was called primarily for the election of officers, and the greatest enthusiasm was manifested during the entire proceedings. On the announcement of Mr. Wood's election to the presidency, he was picked up and carried bodily to the chair. Mr. Wood responded by saying that the occasion reminded him of the old, familiar words, "Some men are born great, while others have greatness thrust upon them." That he was quite equal to the greatness thrust upon him was made evident immediately by the dignified and business-like manner with which he proceeded to carry out the duties of his office.

About the greatest excitement of the afternoon was caused by the election of Mr. Murphy to the office of Sergeant-at-Arms. Upon being requested by the President to restore order, Mr. Murphy attempted to do so, but his attempt was not a howling success. Our Sergeant-at-Arms is from Salt Lake City, and the excellent training which he will derive from the fulfillment of the strenuous duties of his office will put him in great trim for the management of his future numerous wives and children.

The class had not had much time to devote to social affairs, but on Saturday evening, February 28th, a band of about thirty-five of our boys, together with some second and third year men, laid aside care and study for one evening, and proceeded to the Murray Hill Theatre. You may be sure that they were not there long before the "chirp" "chirp" of crickets began to be heard coming from all sides. Then a chorus of shrill whistles was added to the din, after which showers of dried beans began to make their presence known to the audience. Then, to cap the climax, the fumes of red pepper were wafted gently through the air. Strangely enough, the audience didn't appreciate this a bit, and after the first act a big kick was made to the manager. That worthy individual at once called up a patrol wagon, and stationed detectives in the midst of the bunch to find out who were the ringleaders. Somehow, this put a damper on the crowd's enthusiasm, and silence reigned supreme during the rest of the evening. That is until after the show, when the gallant band got together, and proceeded to paint the town red.

Incidentally, the name of the play was "A Bunch of Keys," and, although there have been better shows in town, still, taking it all in all, the boys spent a most enjoyable evening together.

Taking the class of '06 as a whole,* it is one of which each member may well be proud. It is not comprised merely of students from New York and neighboring cities, but all parts of the country have united in sending their best talent here to make up the class of which we are all so proud. And that we will not only as a class make an excellent record for ourselves while in the college, but that also most of the members, after graduating, will eventually rise to the top of the profession, is the firm hope and belief of every student from our Class of '06.

CLASS OF 1903.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Three

IT is not given to the historian of this class to record surpassing feats in athletics or stirring intellectual contests, nor does he have to chronicle a series of scraps and rushes. The light fantastic and the dizzy waltz have had no part in the class life and the fair maiden apparently knows not of its existence. What then, the reader of other class histories will ask, does there yet remain to inspire this sketch? In answer let it be said that the writer has no higher aspiration than to record for the members of the class and their friends some of the incidents and facts in which the class as an entity has been interested, even though in some cases only a portion participated or were directly concerned.

It is not necessary to treat of the unknown antedating the entrance of the class into the N. Y. U. family more than to say that mainly to two causes—one the complement of the other—can probably be attributed its inception; first, each member had an inward thirst for knowledge commercial; second, each had read the School of Commerce Bulletin.

Be that as it may, about the second day of October, 1901, some fifty-eight candidates, according to the catalogue, presented themselves for admission and were received as members of the class of 1903. Each member immediately proceeded to accomplish the object of his coming, viz.: to get acquainted with the faculty, with the fifty-seven, and with the instruction which the party first mentioned felt it their duty to administer. The introduction of those coming under the first classification occurred the first evening, and the members of the second group were not slow in making and receiving advances. With reference to the third the process is still going on and furnishes the burden of further remarks.

A temporary organization was effected within the first two weeks and shortly after a constitution was adopted and officers elected. It was not found necessary to secure clerical assistants for the officers or to place the Treasurer under bond. Class meetings were not popular.

About this time the class was initiated into the mysteries of "The Going Balance Sheet" and "Mill's Fourth Proposition," first learned to distinguish contracts, unilateral and bilateral, and for the first time listened to lectures on "Transportation" at high speed. All of these were considered items in suspense until statements were rendered by the Registrar after the examination.

Later on the class life became much more uneventful than at first and some members, probably realizing that that essential of college life, the dormitory, was denied them, endeavored to make good the deficiency at the expense of the hours for lectures. It was a poor compromise at best, but nodding heads were often seen and it is rumored that certain nasal sounds were occasionally heard. But all did not sleep. It was during the latter part of the first year that one of the class with a gift for pictorial illustration indulged his ability, one evening shortly after Lent, by producing upon the board illustrations of some of the highly specialized subjects which had been presented to the Class. One of these was so remarkable that frequent reference to it was made by a member of the faculty in his subsequent lectures. Artist, instructor and subject are no longer with us, but who could then have said that the first two were "going?"

There were some missing faces when in October return was made to the ninth floor of the University Building. The loss to the class at this time was in part compensated by the accession of two members, Amerman and Moyer (O. C.), who, knowing good company even without seeing it, merged their academic careers with that of the class, and proved themselves useful and agreeable members. It was the pleasure of the Class of Naughty Three to greet also at this time the new men of the other classes, especially those taking advanced standing and forming the Junior Class. These latter have attended with members of the Senior Class many of the lectures of the graduating year, and a feeling of good fellowship has sprung up in consequence.

Twenty-nine of the old members of the class entered upon the last year's work and constitute with the two mentioned above the present Senior Class. Their names are given on a preceding page. Of those who were once identified with the class, but of whom only memories remain, might be mentioned A. G. Anderson, J. A. Anderson, Bussick, Cohn, Diebold, Ellis, Grafius, Greenfield, Kasagai, Levett, Richardson, G. W. Schneider, H. G. Schneider, Scofield, Seymour, Standard, Trader, White and Yeardeley.

Although all of the first year was not required for the members of the class to become acquainted, it was not until the beginning of the second year that any marked evidence of class spirit manifested itself. As soon, however, as the class reconvened after the summer vacation, the suggestion of a class dinner was made and received with approval. Accordingly a good representation from the class met at Murray Hill Hotel, Saturday evening, October 25th, in attendance upon the first class dinner. The evening was rounded out with anecdotes and speeches and a new era in the class history was thus begun. A little over a month later, December 6th, the class held its second dinner at the Ashland House. On this occasion there was a larger attendance and a more elaborate program. The event proved so enjoyable that it was voted to continue this feature of the class life.

January 10th was decided upon as the date of the next similar meeting, but owing to occurrences beyond human control this meeting was never held.

On January 9th occurred the death of Dean Haskins, the announcement of which came as a severe shock to the whole Class. In him it mourns the loss of a benefactor and friend second to no other. He had often expressed the pleasure afforded him by his weekly meetings with the class, and dwelt especially on this feature in the closing words of his last lecture just prior to his fatal illness. The students of the School attended his funeral in a body, and in other ways gave evidence of their esteem.

The second half of the year has now begun, the midyear examinations are over and the class has entered upon the home stretch. Each member is looking forward to the time when he shall be the proud possessor of a sheepskin bearing the seal of the University. Some, indeed, have laid their plans for even higher distinction at Albany. Two at least already have C. P. A. certificates. If a word of prophecy will be indulged, it is more than probable that the world of the future will look to the class of 1903 for some of its bank presidents, railroad magnates and trust promoters. Already the class has its Stock Exchange crowd, a quartet, who with a few others hold nightly meetings in the rear of the room. It has been noted that marked disturbances in the Street have followed some of these conferences.

This sketch would not be complete without conveying some idea of the personnel of the class. Of the thirty members now composing it, Leppien no longer meeting with it, six are married. They are Amerman, Bayer, Bentley, Cyphers, Laird and Ulman. It is reasonable to suppose that others, had they not devoted so much of their time to their education, would also have entered that blissful state. Two of the number, Kasai and Sakai, have come all the way from the Island Empire of the East to be of the class. Several others hail from places far removed from New York. While the majority have their present abode on Manhattan Isle, about one-third availing themselves of ferries and railroads, trolleys and bridges, regularly make their way from the lecture to homes in Newark, Jersey City, Brooklyn and outlying towns; they are Coddington, Cyphers and Holmes from Newark, English and Streeter from Jersey City, Arning from Rutherford, Baer, Iffla and Warner from Brooklyn, and Miller and Rose from Westchester County.

Just as this sketch was being completed the members of the Class succeeded in assembling in sufficient numbers and under conditions favorable for a class photograph. Twenty-three were included in the group. The absentees were Bloomfield, Cook, Hellerson, Kroehl, Leppien, Smith, Trunsley and Warner.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Four

THE fiery splendor of old Sol, as he rose on the morning of October 1st, 1902, seemed to portend a day that would be memorable in the annals of mankind. Though he could not stay to be a spectator of the culminating event of the day—he reluctantly turned his face from this terrestrial sphere with the comforting assurance that he was a true prophet; for the mothers of some of the young men (we may well say young men, as some of them were indeed babes, not having grown any hair on their craniums) had already begun to prepare them for their appearance and entrance into the N. Y. U. School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance.

Some of the tender mothers had foresight enough to coach their ambitious offspring as to their deportment towards the august Faculty. The self-reliance thus developed duly awed the susceptible Profs., and they thereupon decided that the sooner they were rid of them the better; so they determined to tell these fostered darlings that they would be allowed to complete the regular three years' course in two years.

In this auspicious manner the first Junior Class of the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance was conceived. It is said that J. Pierpont Morgan spent a restless night because he seemed to feel—doubtless because the atmosphere was permeated with the newly discovered genius that was developed, cultured and started on its triumphant journey at the aforesaid School of Commerce, etc., etc.—that his title to the world would be disputed in a few short years. Even the shades of Alexander and Napoleon paled, and "Uncle Russell" shook in his boots as he noted the awakening of those who would make his famed efforts look like Thirty Cents! The only reason the soul of the United States Steel Corporation did not quake within itself, was because corporations have no souls! The The Standard Oil Company, as soon as it recovered from its fright, raised the price of oil two cents a gallon, thereby staving off its inevitable destruction for a few short years.

In fact, as this invincible phalanx was composed of stars of such brilliancy it was suggested at once that they form a Star Trust, but one exceedingly luminous fellow suggested that as they were all stars of such great magnitude they were really Sons, and should form a Sun Trust. This was accordingly done and a body "de jure" was duly organized. The asteroids in this Amalgamation of Constellations have gathered from all parts of the firmament. They hail from all parts of this "Land of the $$$$ and Home of the Trusts," and even from the far-away "Isle of Erin," Denmark, the "Empire of the Mikados" and even—Hoboken.

This enormous Trust of Suns (of guns) is one that both trusts and does not trust, but is trustworthy and always may be trusted to take the lead while others follow. These remarkable record-beaters soon had the austere seniors on the run, who had to do some tall sprinting to maintain their lead in the race for diplomas. The midyear exams. showed in large type that '04 must have a pace set them that would hustle their elder Brothers, or they would do a little pace-making themselves.

It is worthy of note that the class was foremost in the mass meeting called relative to the death of our beloved Dean Charles W. Haskins—a member of our class presiding, and our president acting as secretary and treasurer.

This Sun Trust not only shines with overwhelming brilliancy in the intellectual, moral and physical worlds, but its glitter has surpassed all others in the social sphere. The illuminating splendor of this Trust burst forth on February 28th into a grand banquet and theatre party. "Mr. Bluebeard" was the objective point, and the banquet was served at the Marlborough. Suffice it to say—the class yell was not forgotten, and—well! you know the boys just had a good time! The toast list was exceptionally rich and complete. It was such a great success that several more were indulged in. One a month is now the rule.

The Horologue of time has yet to strike once again, when this history will be resumed and the glories of Naughty-four will be reiterated to the honor of our beloved Alma Mater.

History of Nineteen Hundred and Five

The Class of 1905, School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance of the New York University, was called into being because of a demand in the business world for expert accountants. Not that there is now more fraud or speculation than there was in the good old days, but rather a tremendous volume of intricate, far-reaching records to be dealt with. The acquiring of the ability to grapple with and master these problems is our aim.

Our class numbers fifty-seven and we are pleased to note that the presence of one of the fair sex numbers us with the Co-eds. The course being a new one, perhaps an introduction into its mysteries would not be out of place.

Our beloved professor, Joseph French Johnson, is endeavoring in his masterly pedagogical way to inspire our minds with the weighty matters of Political Economy. We are confident that his efforts in our behalf will not prove unfruitful, although our minds may, at times, appear to have a very low "Margin of Utility" for the intricacies of wealth, value, rent, interest, profits and the like.

Mr. Cleveland Frederick Bacon takes the position of another serious portion of our tuition in that of Commercial Law. We feel capable of elucidating the difference between six dozen dozen and a half a dozen dozen—that's practical accounting; but when it comes to "Implying a Condition" or "Good Consideration" we fear that there may have been some "Fraud," thereby labeling ourselves as "Lunatics," hence giving us no "Chose in Action." We might, however, "Demur," "Chew Hairs" for a while, and (T) remain in the original predicament.

Now, when Mr. Chapman gives us the "Theory of Accounts," we settle down for an easy evening. His familiarity with and experience in his branch make his lectures indeed not grievous, but full of pleasure.

Mr. William H. Dennis is a practical accountant, and he would have us likewise. His task is a hard one, but his willingness to instruct and ours to listen will enable us both to accomplish our aims.

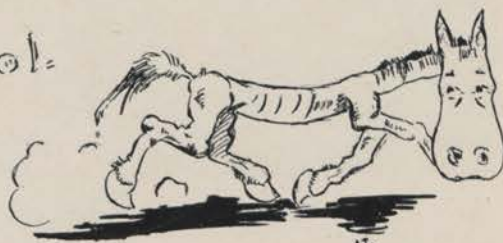

When the summer of 1905 has arrived, and the Board of Regents have been duly besieged, look out for shingles inscribed with the names of the Class of 1905. We are keeping a certain end in view, and with this as our motto, the trifling annoyances which beset our pathway will be easily overcome and our goal reached.

To Classmates:

May these shingles be like powerful electro-magnets having the two poles of ability and fidelity, bound round and round with the wires of business and filial devotion through which the current of life sent pulsating and throbbing will make for you an attractiveness irresistible in its power, drawing men to you and holding them there.

ATHLETICS

J. D. TAYLOR '06

Editorial

THE end of the first half of the college year of 1903 saw an advance in athletics which will, in time, without doubt place us in our deserved position in the world of college athletics. Ranking, as we do, fourteenth in point of numbers, among the colleges of the country, we have been unable to take the place deservedly ours, because our schools are so widely scattered, but this disadvantage will, with the advent of the rapid transit, and with the continued splendid support from the Medical School and the School of Veterinary Surgeons, soon be overcome. We note with pride the large number of men from the downtown schools who made the football team, and who, by their efforts, were mainly instrumental in making the most successful season we ever had. We met our old rivals at Hartford again, and, for the first time, defeated them. Encouraged by this victory, we easily disposed of our other opponents, Rutgers and Union.

Our Gymnastic team again showed its mettle and won two more victories—one from Rutgers last season, and one from Haverford this season—thus adding two banners to our already large number. The addition of a number of underclassmen who, by hard work, bid fair to become point winners, makes the team stronger than last year, and we hope to make a creditable showing in the Intercollegiate. The work of G. P. A. Brayden, '03, deserves special mention, he having won first place in the Intercollegiate in club swinging. Owing to the efforts of the management, we had a very successful quadrangular exhibition, the participants being Princeton, Yale, Pennsylvania and N. Y. U.

In track work, we have been equally successful. Our team upheld its unparalleled record by rather easily disposing of Lehigh, but we are grieved that such can not be said of our meet with Rutgers. In this meet we met with the second defeat which we have ever experienced on the track.

Last season's base ball team did not make as creditable a showing as we had anticipated, but our victory over Rutgers counterbalanced the defeat they administered to us on the track.

The advisability of having an N. Y. U. crew was, last season, eagerly discussed, and, owing to the splendid generosity of Commodore David Banks, we were enabled to place what proved to be an excellent crew on the water. Under the able captaincy of Captain L. Blunt, and owing to the coaching of Fred Kafka, our crew, with but six weeks of actual training, led Columbia's 'varsity, coached by the incomparable Hanlon, by two lengths, for a mile and a quarter, to be defeated by only half a boat length in time one second less than the record. The prospects for the coming aquatic season are promising, and with Captain Lane as a leader, we do not fear results.

As a fitting conclusion, we may state that the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Association selected our gymnasium in which to hold its annual contest.

The Faculty

"CHANCY."

"I have done many things in my lifetime."

"DOC" SIHLER.

Little lines of Latin,
Little lines of scan,
Make a mighty Virgil
And a ——y man.

"POLYCON" JOHNSON.

The only scientific thing to do with money is to spend it.

"MARSH" BROWN.

"As just a man as 'ere my conversation cop'd withal."

"STEVIE."

"I am the eye with which the universe
Beholds itself and knows itself divine."

PSHAW.

We might be able to stand his jokes,
Although they're such a bore,
If he only would dissolve them first
In  $H_2SO_4$ .

"LARRY."

"The whale said, 'You can't keep a good man down,' but I know ways to do it."

"ARCHIE."

Being Professor of the Hot-air courses, he has lately been made Regis(ter).

THE GREEK PROF.

"Still waters flow deep."

"TOMMY ED."

"A man who doesn't tell all he knows, but knows all he tells."

"DADDY" LOEB.

A capable man, who can manage a two-story lab. and Nash to boot.

1903

"O, what a split was there."

"BALDY" SHOTWELL.

His bosom friends say he has to tie a string around his head so as to know how far up to wash his face.

"DICK" CROCKER.

A flirt! by George.

"SOL" JAEGER.

Zay, Ike, ain't it funny, I'm growing so long sideways, just like Pa.

"CHAS." HOLLAND.

His trousers seem to abhor his shoe-tops.

"FRITZ" LANE.

My chief aim in college is to emulate the late Lewis Blunt's persuasive manner.

"LIN" O'CONNOR.

'Twould not be meet to roast the spotter.

"FRANKIE" WILCOX.

It's unkind to make another crack on his dimples, but a girl who had just met him for the first time, was heard to say: "Why, how funny, Mr. Wilcox has dimples instead of eyes."

"LOU" CONDIT.

There ain't no grind big enough for the 1903 Grinds Editor, so suffice it to say that he hails from Baboonton, N. Y.

"AARON BURR" KEATER.

We hear he's the cut-up of the Law School.

"BILLY" ORR.

Peruse this VIOLET and be ground.

"SPLINTER" SAYLE.

I never have so profound a belief in Providence, as when I think that I have stayed in college four years.

"GEO" SYKES.

The 1903 Barnard pet and a coming orator.

GRIFFEN, SIMPSON AND HERZOG.

We're the Law School.

"DINNY" ALLEN.

Some of his Ramapo wit: "I haven't got no razor, so I guess I'll raise-er beard."

1904

"When half-gods go, the gods arrive."

"GERSTIE" GERSTENBERG.

I am proud that I beat Doc Sihler out of his job.

"MOTHER" LIPPINCOTT.

As she approaches the grandeur of complete womanhood, it seems doubtful which of her features is most prominent, her mouth or her feet.

"STEPH" SMITH.

Yes, I shaved for the first time this winter, and the crop furnished material for two hair mattresses and a pillow.

LOUIS FREES.

My habits are very regular; I spend one day at college, the next at home, and the third among my political friends. You see, this method prevents me from spending too much time in any one pursuit.

"WALT" LEONARD.

I'm glad I sit in the second row in the Mandolin Club, for then I can flirt with the pretty girls better. Oh! go 'way.

"FAT" FRIEDBURG.

A corporation, but no trust (when he is collecting V's for the VIOLET).

"MIKE" O'NEILL.

Maybe I ain't no scholar, but look at my mustache, the only one in the class.

"SON O' GYM" PECK.

There was a man at N. Y. U.,
Who took to booze and smoking, too,
His nose was pug, and so to him
We gave the name of Sunny Jim.
But since he's shown such form and Force.
In stunts upon the rings and horse
We've made the name bring fame to him
By changing it to Son o' Gym.

"CAS" CARREAU.

While being a versatile conversationalist in all departments of human knowledge, he is the best authority on what he knows nothing about, and on self-evident untruths.

"BARNY" TAYLOR.

He knew not what to say, and so he swore.

"CHESTY" LANE.

Season thy self-admiration for a while.

"JOHNNY" TUTHILL.

I would beguile the tedious day with sleep.

"BOB" SIEBENMANN.

Thy face is valanced* since I saw thee last.

(*valanced-fringed.)

"EDDIE" RALDIRIS.

He eats fire and drinks blood, and generally has his nerve with him.

"ARCHIE" STEVENSON.

You won't be a poet before you know it.

"CARRY" WATERS.

Doctors who have diagnosed his case say he hasn't enough energy to be lazy, but they may be wrong.

"BOB" SIMMONS.

Nobody thought he was alive until he was seen in the rôle of third baseman, and then—well he made the horse-hide look like a dead one.

PAUL WUNDERLICH.

A beardless youth, lifting up his eyes towards the crescent moon.

"JERRY" KOHN.

Full of promptings and suggestions.

"YOHN" EUNSON.

I cannot rest from travel, I will drink life from the lees.

"BALLOON" BRAGDON.

He's the only one,

And a child so fair;

His one fault is

He's 'ere "up in the air."

"RALPH" CLARK.

Who harms a hair on this old grey head

Dies like a dog. (For he's studying Med.)

1904 VIOLET (in relation to 1903 VIOLET).

Sweet is pleasure after pain.

1905

"We in our wisdom."

—Tibbetts.

"GRUEL" DARLING.

My chief development at the Heights has been a capacity for more noise.

"BARNEY" CLARK.

My views on the length of a college course don't jibe with Columbia; I believe in a 10 years' course.

"SPIDER" GOULD.

By dint of his escaping the puerile influences of Yonkers for 4 years, he may become a man.

"JIM" SIMMONS.

"Good gentlemen, give him a further edge."

"LARRY" STONE.

(Note the misplaced eyebrow.) He has a hairlip.

"CHARLIE" SEARING.

Then will I come to mama, by and by.

"SCULLER" REYNOLDS.

Champion Intercollegiate Tumbler.

"COL" FELTER.

You speak like a green girl.

"BOB" SIMPSON.

I never did nothing, and I don't believe I ever shall.

"BILL" COE.

Hippo, the prize of the Zoo.

"GO" TEAGUE.

Oh, there has been much throwing about of brains.

"ED" GREEN.

I beseech you, give him leave to go.

"ROY" NAFIS.

A ragged hat was on his head.

1906

"It is common for the younger sort to lack discretion."

"BOY" BANKS.

Oh! what a rogue am I.

"JOE" BANDERMANN.

I'm quiet, but I get there just the same.

"JAP" CONNELL.

He laughs like a hyena, and talks like a rag-man.

"RIP" VAN WINKLE.

Such a specimen as the world would quake to look on.

"BILL" HOLME.

If silence is a virtue, he must be pretty good.

"HARRY" KNAPP.

But Heaven hath pleased it so, to punish us thus with this.

RUSSELL.

Freddie's cousin.

"LARRY" MILLER.

More to learn did never meddle with his thoughts.

"DEEMS" TAYLOR AND "HAWIE" SIMMONS.

Of course, you must have milk, but let it not be as fresh as of late.

"HOW" WYLIE AND "CRISS" DOWLER.

Mere boyish traits abound in these.

Miscellaneous

The following joke (?) is recommended by Prof. Sihler as good humor for THE VIOLET:

"DOC" SIHLER (to class)—"You see I've used red pencil on the prose books this time. Do you prefer red or blue?"

"POP" CARSTEN—"Neither." (Prolonged laugh at a sign from the professor.)

"SOL" MOSS, excited by trying to bluff Larry, translates—"The nightly robberies took place daily."

The sophomores and freshmen were just about to have a fight after chapel, and the upper classmen stood by encouraging them to "get in," when Chancy comes out and first reaching "Dinny" Allen, who is standing with pipe in his mouth, says: "Mr. Allen, what are you standing here for? Go to your class immediately."

DINNY—"I have no class, doctor."

CHANCY—"Disperse then, Mr. Allen, disperse; don't loiter here."

"SHOT" (spying program of Glee Club Concert( given under auspices of the Entre-Nous Club)—"What does entre-nous mean, after you? Why that's the After You Club then, isn't it?"

SIHLER (during oral quiz)—"I have seen pretty good work in this examination, much better than in the term work."

CARREAU (translating)—"Good God. . . ."

STODDARD—"Yes, the other day I met a man who was very jubilant over the discovery that Homer did not write the poems generally ascribed to him. He claimed that not Homer, but another man by the same name, wrote them."

"DOMINIE" JACKSON—"Dante was very unpopular because he depicted some of the popes as in hell, but never mind that now, gentlemen, we shall come across them later."

PROF. EDMONSTON (in physics)—"What is the objection to the use of alcohol, Mr. Johnson?"

JOHNSON—"I don't know of any, except when you color it."

DEEMS TAYLOR, who for the first time in his life has stayed up after mid-night, ejaculates, on discovering that it is 12.20: "Gee whiz, fellows, if this was the thirty-first of December it would be New Years."

"DOC" SIHLER's advice to his son, Howard Sihler—"Buy books instead of pants, my son." (The above are the bare facts.)

"JERRY" KOHN (telling Prof. Stoddard's class about Landor)—"Landor was a fine poet. If he couldn't write a poem at one sitting, he wouldn't sit down at all."

"ARCHIE" BOUTON—"Macaulay's thoughts were full of but's."

LEBARON—"Did he smoke?"

PROF. LOEB—"Now, what causes temporary hardness of water?"

"BARNY" CLARK—"Ice."

PROF. BROWN—"Mr. Howe, in what branch of culture did the Arabians excel?"

HOWE—"Horticulture, I believe."

WEARY, to his special adviser—"Professor, I don't understand all these conditions, I expected to get through these courses with ease."

SPECIAL ADVISER—"So you did, Mr. Werrenrath, you succeeded excellently."

LANE (translating Dutch)—"Jacob (sich am Ohre kratzend)." "Jacob, on his ear, scratching himself."

"DOC" SIHLER (translating in Horace's satires I, VI, 121 concerning money-lenders, the Novii)—"We'll translate Novii by 'Simpsons.' When I was a boy Simpson used to have a monopoly in the 3-ball business."

BACKORA, BECKER and KOHN, in chorus, (evidently touched in a sensitive spot)—
"They have yet, professor."

PROF. BROWN (in lecture)—"When Dudley would tell Elizabeth that she was not only queen of England, but queen of women, she would reward his flattery with a peerage or a few manors."

FRIEDBURG (intended sotto voce)—"Cinch."

PROF. JOHNSON (to Muldoon)—"Mr. Muldoon, were you ever in business?"

MULDOON—"No sir."

PROFESSOR—"Never—didn't you ever sell papers or anything like that?"

"DOC" SIHLER, on 1903 VIOLET—"Why don't those juniors import some one who has some humor, or consult an older man: I am forty-five. But these allusions are all harmless. It's as if you should give me a tea cup with a little barley and oatmeal and a few grains of salt and a little tepid water, and say: 'Here is a cocktail'; just about as insipid."

DEAN SNOW—Gen—gen—tleman, a boulder gentleman—a boulder that is not a nigger head, gentleman, is a boulder, gentleman.

An Hour with an Eminent Latin Professor

THE ex-ball tosser sat at his table absorbed in an interlinear of Cicero's 22d Philippic. The brilliant April sun poured through the open window and was reflected upon the professor's polished pate into the fresh faces of the gathering students. As the tardy ones were climbing into their seats via their classmates' shoulders, a mellow voice, thickly tintured with Teutonic, burst from beneath the bowed head that made Johns Hopkins famous: "Chentlemen, on just such a day as this, your old gray-headed professor made a one-handed catch in left field, whereby the Mount Vernon Alerts defeated the Octavian Tigers. Mr. Hansl——" but the applause which followed the center fielder's confession drowned his words for a moment. "Mr. Hansl," he repeated, "you will begin with the ordo—but first let me announce that through the efforts of myself the New York University library now has a copy of Mrs. Rorer's cook book, published in Rome by the C. J. Caesar Co., in 123 B.C., or 1615 years before the Columbo-Vespuccian boat race. This book is the only one of its kind in captivity, and should be read by everyone in this class. Mr. Hansl, you will please begin the ordo where you left off."

"Before I begin, professor, may I ask you if it is true that no one ever swam the Tiber?"

As the pride of J. H. U. donned the smile-that-won't-come-off, and gazed fondly at the jewelled case of his Ingersoll, he said: "No, boys, not to-day. Some other time I'll tell you how Number One of the three varieties of Latin scholars risked his life in the turbid torrent of the terrible Tiber, but flinched not beneath the awful strain. I haven't time to-day to tell you how the Romans cheered the only man since Horatius, who successfully stemmed the tide. Mr. Hansl will now begin the ordo, but before I have the ordo, I always require a little verb-work." So saying, the first Ph.D. from Mr. Hopkins' Seminary side-stepped to his favorite picture frame containing samples of Patton's Sun Proof Paint. As the wily Mount Vernonite stabbed Mr. Patton's suggestion for tin roofs, a newly-entered freshman yelled, "Ten to one on the red," and the bell rang.

As the class reached the second floor the troubled face of the professor appeared over the railing: "Take three more pages for to-morrow;" but to-morrow was Saturday.

ACROSS THE CAMPUS.

Examinations Prepared by an Appreciative Body of Students for the Faculty

(Doc. Sihler's patent reversible method to prevent cribbing has been adopted, i. e., to give each man a different question.)

CHANCY "MAC."

Describe and illustrate the University Syndic.

"STEVIE."

The world: its form, structure, and the animal life existing thereon.

"DANNY."

Calculate the pitch of your voice, giving approximate number of vibrations per second.

"STODDY."

Explain in detail your improved method of marking students by chance; the method in which you place a list of the class on the wall, and then, having blindfolded Archie, have him mark letters opposite the names at random. Nothing above "C" allowed.

"CHARLIE" SNOW.

If the object of glue is to glue, then when is it not, and why?

"BILLY."

(Come up to the front seat and take your examination orally.) Kindly inflect the Spanish language and write any two pages of a French-English dictionary from memory.

"DADDY."

Find the density of a human sphere as broad as it is long.

"DOC" SIHLER.

Explain in full your system for killing the cavalry without firing a shot.

"BONESY."

Explain fallacy in following: All ducks are web-footed. The Presidents of the United States all had large feet. Therefore George Washington was a duck.

"C. P." BLISS.

Why is red hair and a blue necktie like being beside your sweetheart in an automobile on a moonlight evening? Ans.—It's bliss.

BURDEN.

If an automobile is running forty miles an hour against an east wind, what will be the thermo-dynamic efficiency and water consumption per square inch of the back wheel?

"POLYCON" JOHNSON.

What's the price o' wheat?

"GEO." MASON."

If you were in New York City without a copy of the World Almanac, how would you determine the height of the Flatiron Building (a) on a clear day; (b) on a foggy day; (c) on a rainy day; (d) on a windy day?

A Little Game of Golf

HE day was bright and clear, such a day as allures all followers of the Scotch version of Ping Pong forth from the depths or from the heights of their several occupations, and induces true lovers of that manly art to hie them to the bonny braes of old Van Cortlandt.

It was on such a day in the beautiful month of October that the Heavenly Twins decided to have a mad frolic. "Hoot mon," quoth Lounging Larry to Pretty Pom, "dinna ye see 'tis ein so bonny a dey; wa nae ging us t' the heathery hills?"

"Your question is evidently open to discussion, but by the formula for the——"

"In truth, mon, although your speech hath the form of a riddle, I read consent in your coquettish manner," interrupted Larry.

So donning their plaids and doffing their bonnets, arm in arm they repaired to the links.

They approached the teeing-ground. "Now there be numerous ways by which we might derive the formula for the solving of this problem," quoth Pondering Pom, "there are 346 chances from among, for instance——"

"Gewiss," agreed Long-legged Larry.

"But leaving this question for a moment, we will proceed to the next question, which according to the formula for——"

"Oh! cut it out," cried Larry, "use plain, idiomatic English, and gee once first ahead and drive."

So Pretty Pom, placing the golfic globule upon the plane of the teeing ground in geometrical proportion, proceeded to drive. After several apparent errors in mathematical calculation, he found the point of contact and advanced the ball at least 50 feet.

"Hoot mon," said the Dutchman, "t'wa ein bonny stroke, now go thee ahead and make strokes until thee get far enow awa, so I may drive."

Then he leisurely deposited himself 'neath a shady tree. After a satisfactory glance at his tapering limbs, encased in becoming Scotch hose with green fringes, he drew forth from his pocket his corn-cob pipe. Opening a choice package of Black Jack, otherwise known as the Sailor's Friend, he amused himself by blowing smoke rings at Pom who, after a few ineffectual applications of the law of progressions, desisted from his attempts, and was soon lost in calculating the curve of his calf. While engrossed in this operation, his cap and stock formed the frame for the picture of a self-satisfied smile—or was it sarcastic? By this time the smoke about Larry had become so thick that he was unable any longer to see Playful Pom in the midst of his struggles. Taking it for granted that his opponent was at least a mile ahead, he raised himself in sections until he came to an upright position. One foot rested upon the teeing ground—certainly there was room for the ball on one corner—of the foot—and the other somewhere else, you could tell if you shaded your eyes and gazed in the distance. He was about to make an effort to raise the driver, but considering the sudden strain too great for his nerves, he took another puff from his choice mixture. After due consideration, and with considerable resolution, he raised the club, shut his eyes, and made a powerful swing. The ball flew from the tee with the speed of a bullet.

"Twa ein bonny——" Suddenly from the distance, beyond the smoke, came a muffled yell, causing him to pause in the act of replacing his golf club. In a flash the terrible truth dawned upon him and froze the smile upon his lips. "Hoot, Himmel," he cried, and rushing madly through the smoke, came upon Poor Pom who, to the accompaniment of short sobs and choked exclamations, and bending over as if in pain, was removing from his mouth in a hasty, if not dignified manner, portions of teeth.

Larry expressed regrets, which were audible when the air was not too blue, and that wasn't often.

"Um—um—um," blurted Pale Pom, which few labials Larry took as an acceptance of his apology. Then he produced a copious plaid handkerchief with which he bound the victim of one of his "strong firsts."

Then began Pom, "It seems obvious from the nature of the result——" but the maimed member had already become so enlarged that further words were indistinguishable.

Golfers arriving at the links saw, arm in arm, coming slowly over the hill, a little man with head completely hidden by a large Scotch plaid handkerchief, and a large man with a large pipe, and large—but it would be unkind to mention nature's overgenerosity in the way of "good understanding." Students were surprised the next Monday to find upon entering class that the professor had "cut."

The Happy Faculty of Producing a Minstrel Show

(By permission of the Council and Senate.)

INTERLOCUTOR, "CHANCYMAC" ..... (MR. RUNFAC)
RIGHT END MAN, "BONESEY" BALLARD..... (BONES)
LEFT END MAN, "LARRY" McDUTCH.. (SAMBO, no relation to his tam-o'-shanter)
CHORUS, "POM-MERY'S EXTRA DRY," "FLAGOLETTE," "BON TON" (Music Hall), "DANIEL AND THE LION" (who swallowed the fish), "MORRIS HEIGHTS GLOBE," "M. NANCY BROWN" (with apologies to Marie Cahill), CHARLIE BRISTLES (hot dogs wanted for the laboratory)
"THE WIZARD OF OZ- (born)" UND "GOTTLIEB."

The entire production brought from Europe at the expense of the Faculty.
Scenery designed and built in the shops by "Dr." Niagara Falls. (No one need tumble to this frivolity.)

Program

1. OPENING UPROAR, "FLUNKS".....
WRITTEN AND SUNG BY THE FACULTY.
2. LOCAL DUET, "DOWN WHERE THE WURTZBURGER FLOWS".....
....."POM-MERY'S EXTRA DRY" AND "LARRY" McDUTCH
3. INSTRUMENTAL SOLO, "DIE WACHT AM RHEIN"....."GOTTLIEB"
(PLAYED BY REQUEST OF PERFORMER.)
4. MONOLOGUE, "MA SHALL BROWN HER BABY BOY".....
5. SKIRT DANCE (with apologies to the real thing) as performed before the swelled heads of Europe.....BY "CAN-CAN"
6. PROF. AQUA'S SONG (assisted by chorus) "HOW CAN I BAIRD TO LEAVE THEE" .....
7. SONG, "THE TENNIS CHAMPION" OR "HOW I PUT THE BUG ON THE REST OF THEM".....EZRA KENDALL FLAGOLETTE

8. A BURLESQUE ON WEBER AND FIELDS, BY "MORRIS HEIGHTS GLOBE" AND "POLY-WANT-A-CRACKER STOCKYARD," introducing their time-worn jokes while attempting to dance the "WHIRLEY-CURLEY"....
9. RECITATION, "IF I WERE KING".....MR. CHANCYMAC
10. GRAND FINALE (with slow music by the "COLLEGE BAND") AND THE SONG "THE HEIGHTS AIN'T WHAT THEY USED TO BE".....

Curtain drops slowly while a Carnegious Billionaire in the audience donates the "Hall of Philosophy." Then Mr. "Blue-Beard Pshaw" sticks his head through a hole in the curtain and announces that the next performance will be given on the floor above, on which the students rush upstairs to secure rear seats (force of habit).

Some of the Jokes Cracked During the Performance. (Most of them found wormy on cracking.)

CHANCY—"Why is No. 13, who sounds the hour bell in Association Hall, a professional?"

BROWNIE—"Give it up."

CHANCY—"Because he's a ringer."

X—"Why does the Cardinal believe in a trust?"

Y—"Because he belongs to a corporation."

X—"Why is our Physical Director so popular?"

Y—"Because he does all he Cann."

X—"Why do Pom-mery's features gain popularity for him?"

Y—"Because he has the smile-that-never-comes-off."

"DOC" SIHLER (to SAXON) who has translated about 60 lines of Terrence—"Proceed with the translation, please."

"DOMINIE" SAXON, continuing—"Oh, unfortunate man that I am."

Then Someone whistled "I'm Unlucky."

PROF. BOUTON—"Mr. Simpson, how would you characterize Carlyle's memory?"

SIMPSON, '05—"Why—er—well the knowledge he had he always remembered."

Selections from a speech by Mr. "Chesty" Lane: "Before I begin to speak I would like to say a few words on the subject under discussion. . . . As I have already previously said before. . . . I am acquainted with cracker women in the south, who can spit with unerring accuracy through a window, do you call that decency?"

PROF. BROWN—"What was the second legislative act of Henry VIII?"

BEEBE '03 (just awakening from a triangle dream)—"I think it was to secretly marry the pope."

PROF. BROWN—"Who was Elinore of Aquitaine?"

"SPIDER" RUSSELL (on the day after the trip to Albany)—"It seems to me she was the husband of Louis of France, and also the wife of Henry of England."

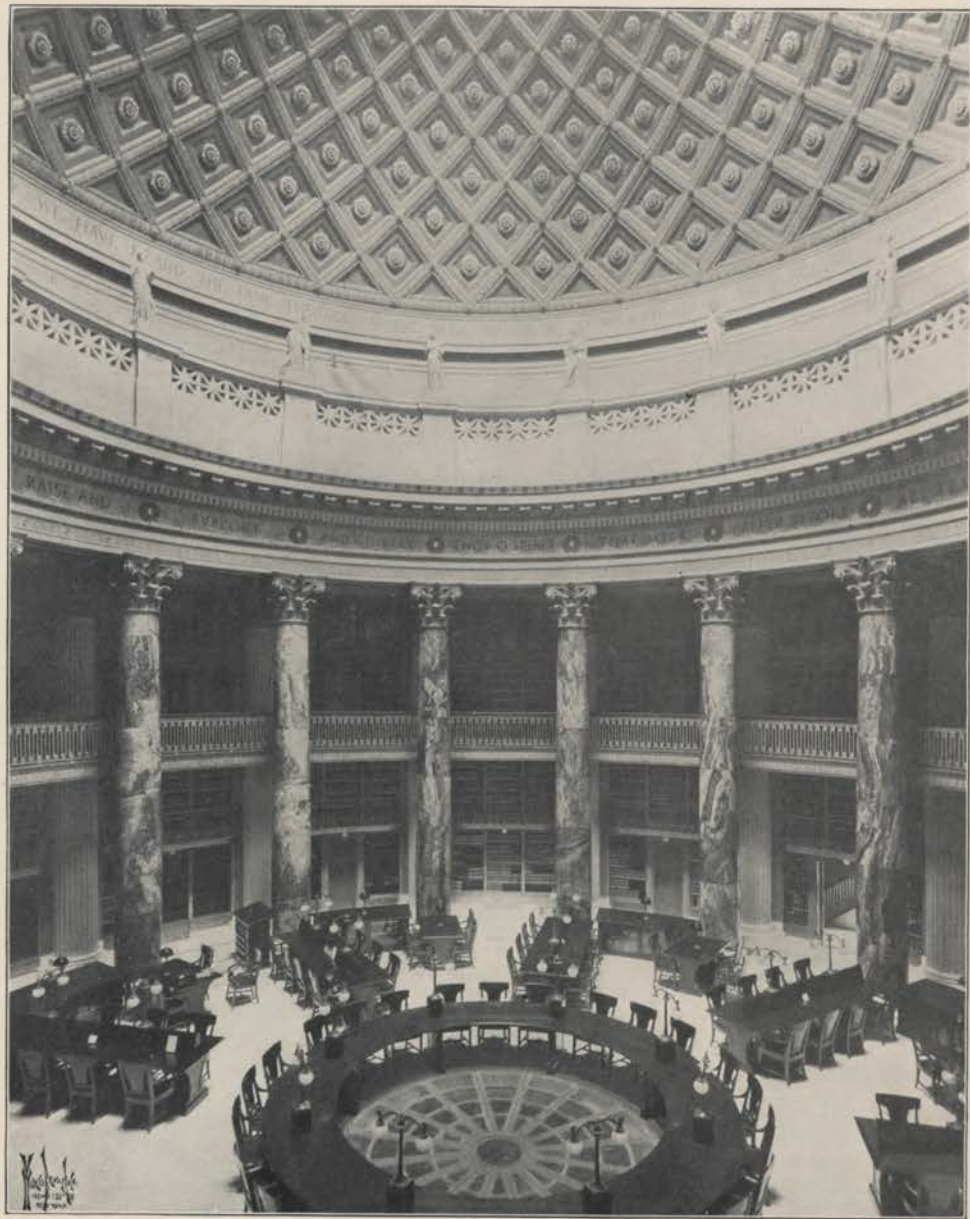

SIHLER, PH.D. (explaining "pugnare")—"Before the ancients had arms, they fought with their fists."

McCLINCHE (on the subject of dreams)—"My father, my uncle and myself, all dreamed that I was drowning on the very same night. Now, professor, what would that mean?"

PROF. JOHNSON—"To me it would seem to mean, get your life insured."

Editorial

WHAT constitutes good literature? This question has puzzled the scholars for ages, and even the profound wisdom of the editors of the Violet board has not been able to satisfactorily settle it. In fact we frankly admit that we don't know and give it up, and yet we have the temerity to label this section of the Violet with the pretentious title of "Literary Department." We do this for two reasons; first, to aid you in the reading, and second in order to give us a chance to work off some of the contributions that have been handed in, and which do not fit in any other department. And so, without claiming the following pages to possess any startling literary merit, or that any of the productions herein presented will revolutionize established customs, we herewith submit them to the tender mercies of a critical public. In so doing we trust that anyone tempted to harshly criticize our youthful literary performance will first sit down and attempt to do better before yielding to the tempter.

The Fable of the Boy Who Warbled

THERE was once a Boy who had been accustomed to make a joyful Noise in his village choir, to get two Mazumas and a pretty Calendar at the end of each year, who came to College, and decided to join the Glee Club. Although the boy's voice sounded like when you draw your Chair up to the Table, the Manager told him he would be doing Solo work within two weeks, and that already he had De Resky and the others looking like a bunch of Dead Ones. This made the Boy's brain-holder swell like a damp Sponge, and he would walk about the Campus with his nose at such an angle that the Profs. thought he was paralyzed.

Occasionally he would mingle with the common Herd at Rehearsals, but he wouldn't notice them, and would look all the time as though something smelt Bad. He would sit and utter strange Noises, while the Hoi-Poloi were singing their Lays, and every now and then would whisper to his Neighbor that the Fuge movement should be taken Allegretto, and that the director's interpretation of the Counterpoint Ensemble was awful. The Neighbor said Yes, he Guessed so, and got up and left.

Turning to the Guy on the left, the Boy asked him if he had been down to take in Alvarez and Schumann-Heink. The Guy backed off for a minute, and, before he could reply, the Boy said, "Perhaps you prefer Sembrich. She has much more Temperament, and the Timbre of her tones is more—" The Guy hastily remembered an engagement he had, and fled through the door making it in 9 3-5 sec.

After the rehearsal, the Boy started to leave; just as he got outside the Door, he suddenly felt as though a Cathedral had landed on him, and then as though he'd been run down from Behind by the Empire State Express. He lifted his Orbs and beheld his two Glee Club friends, each armed with a Base-Ball Bat, belting various portions of his Carcass as they asked him if "he wished the Timbre more Allegretto or Ensemble?" They left him in a corner of the dormitory, to be found by the Janitor in the morning, and then sallied downtown to get two tickets for the Dewey.

Moral—Modern Education is a Good Thing.

Reflections of a Junior

Gould Hall—only dormitory in the country without proctors. That's so, don't need proctors, don't believe a platoon of police or the State Militia would do much good, either.

Why is it that some ignorant people say that "college-bred" means a four-year loaf?

Strange that Church History is such a popular course. Every seat (especially the back row) taken one hour before the exam. began. Come early for a back seat.

Where, oh! where, have the steps leading from University Heights R. R. Station gone? A liberal reward ought to be offered for their return.

Our former organist and chorister is now seldom seen at chapel. Come back, Doctor, it's too quiet without you, it almost seems like church.

It's easier to pass a written exam. in Spanish with a roomful than to take an oral one in the corner.

How appropriate it was for Prof. Johnston to open his lecture on the Monday after the Prom. with these words. "Let us review the money question."

What doesn't go into the sink in the Biological Lab?

Who is the greater man, the manager of the Glee Club, or Emperor William? Don't ask Carreau, he's prejudiced.

The only scientific thing to do with money is to get rid of it, says Prof. Johnston. Strange how scientific many of us have been without knowing it. But it isn't the getting rid of it that troubles us.

The great question how to interest prominent citizens in politics seems to have been solved. It is rumored that "Pop" Carsten stumped Hoboken during the last election.

All things are said to have an end, except Billy's Spanish exercises, social scenes, etc.

Is that odor of tobacco smoke à la Larry which pervades the top floor of Language Hall, part of the so-called academic atmosphere said to surround all institutions of learning?

On the first Monday in term time of each calendar month, except June and September, three quarters of an hour immediately following prayers will be occupied by "a lecture upon a theme pertaining to morals and religion"—College Catalogue. There seem to have been a good many Junes and Septembers in this year. We've had one lecture.

Blessed is he who has something to say and says it.—Lowell's Beatitude. Hope some of the members of the faculty happen to see this little gem.

True indeed is the old prophesy that the lion and the lamb shall lie down together. The freshies and the sophs have had a joint class meeting. Puzzle—Find the lion.

If you could buy some of the sophomores for what they are really worth and sell them for what they think they are worth, the profit would be beyond computation.

Why is it, asks Larry, that good freshmen become poor sophomores and regular "hot-air furnaces" as juniors? Here certainly is a problem for the sages. Better consult Woolsey, he's said to be an authority on hot-air.

Take an English Constitutional History exam. and then see if you don't feel like committing murder when some engineer comes along and sweetly warbles, "You college men have a cinch."

What did the late Vice-President of the Y. M. C. A. take at the Alumni Dinner? Oh! Chesty.

Now, since the "pony" is a thing of the past, owing to Prof. Sihler's new methods and since the sophs. and freshmen won't scrap because they fear they may hurt each other's feelings, let's call college off and form a nice big sewing circle, meet every afternoon and drink tea.

Some freshmen act as though they thought all serious work ended when the entrance exams. were passed. An awakening comes when the "flunk" notices are issued after the midyear exams.

Prof. Shaw's jokes and the philosophy he teaches are alike in at least one particular; both date back to the time of Aristotle.

The Crisis

Within that chambered room—what dire impending doom?

—The silence durst not tell—

Without the sealed retreat, the tread of struggling feet

Augments the ghastly spell.

But lo! two sounds are heard within, and yet a third—

—'Tis some poor wretch is killed—

The door doth ope anon—at once the "exam. is on"—

The "back-row" has been filled!!

How Are The Mighty Fallen!

Now, behold there dwelt on the Heights four tribes of men.

And from the early times of the fathers the men of the tribe of the Sophomores and the men of the tribe of the Freshmen did battle and wage bloody war.

Now moreover the men of the other tribes, the men of the Seniors and the men of the Juniors counseled the young men in their battles and set feats of valour for them to perform.

Unto the tribe that battled longest and that strove most valiantly they gave each year a trophy, which the young men prized above all else.

In the year of Naughty-three a trial of valour and strength was set for the young men of the tribe of the Sophomores and of the Freshmen.

And it was decreed that on the broad field the Rush of the Rope should be celebrated.

Then the men of the Seniors and of the Juniors did call together the young men and related to them the plans of the battle.

But on the day appointed for the Rush great fear fell upon the men of the younger tribes.

And their knees shook and the leaders of the tribes rent their clothes and ran unto each other and fell on their faces and embraced.

Then they vowed a vow—never again to contend in battle, but to live together like lambs.

Moreover, they went to the men of the Seniors and of the Juniors and said:

The men (?) of the Sophomores and of the Freshmen love each other and will no longer fight, nor will they contest in the Rush, scratch our faces and mar our countenances.

Nay, verily we have decided to live together like little woolly lambs, and to teach our young men to play see-saw and marbles, instead of the wicked rushes.

Therefore did the spirit of the young men wax cold, and where formerly the men of the Heights were valiant and warlike they soon became weak and timid.

And now no more are valourous deeds seen; and the arena reserved for mighty feats is become a place where the young men jump ropes and roll hoops.

So next year when the time for the Rush of the Rope to be celebrated doth arrive the young lambs will not fight, but will drink tea and eat cookies and forget the deeds of their brothers and the honor of their Alma Mater.

The Football Captain

(With apologies to "The Village Blacksmith.")

Upon the well-worn football field
The football captain stands;
A brave and mighty man is he,
For such his place demands;
And his voice is stronger yet by far
Than a Saengerfest's brass bands.

His hair is mop-like, thick and long,
His face is black and blue;
His brow is wet with honest sweat,
His teeth count one or two;
He's looked up to by every man,
For reverence is his due.

Each afternoon at practice
You can hear his mandates roll
Far o'er the field at fumbles made
By some poor, striving soul;
Or if against the 'Varsity
The "scrub" should score a goal.

And students coming out of class
Upon the side-lines stand,
And when the "scrub" makes grand-
stand plays,
They cheer to beat the band;
And they like to see men tackled so
The ground shakes as they land.

Toiling,—rejoicing,—sorrowing,
The football captain goes;
The pile of work he has to do
Seems ne'er to have a close;
And when he goes to bed at night,
He's earned his night's repose.

Thanks, football captain, thanks to thee,
For the lesson thou hast taught!
Thus on the football field of life
Our fortunes must be wrought;
Thus on its hard and well-worn floor
Each victory is bought!

—K. A. W.

Remorse

Not a robin that sang nor a leaf that soft fluttered
Could carol its song, love, for me;
Every sound that I heard was a sound that was uttered
To reproach my unkindness to thee.

The pond-lilied lake, like a star-studded sky,
Beflaked, showed its umbrage alone;
And the lattice of lichens bewitching the eye
Hid none of the dark-ribbed stone.

C. W. G.

Psyche and the Sailor

The Reilley Waters broke on the Moss-covered Banks, Searing them, while from all directions Hille Lanes met at an old Saxon War-ford. On a Stone sat Psyche, the Fair child of a Baker, in a costume of Felter Sielke cloth. She gazed at the Sayles of a fast approaching ship of the Scudder class.

"Lorenz, my King," she murmured. She was a Franco-German, while the lover—Lawrence, the Butler's son—for whom she was sighing, was an Anglo-Hibernian. This explains their different Brogan accent.

As if by magic the Young man of her Soule's desire came into view from behind the Wayne-scotted cottage situated on the Greene Heath. It must be confessed his looks could not have been Bragdon.

"O dear, this is so sudden," she cried. "Whence do you come?"

He told her Howe he had landed near the rabbit's Warren in Holland and had traveled through the intervening Hazlewoods on foot.

"Tell me of your life since I last Sawyer," she pleaded. "Tell a Taylor a pasto-Ral dirist."

"All right, Darling," he answered. "If you Wil co(a)x I'll do it."

Before he began he handed her a bouquet of cows Lipp-in-Cot-ton blossoms. with which she started to Draper hair. As for the tale, it is best passed over, but toward the end it took on the usual nonsensical turn of the lovesick. They cooed like Tuthill doves.

"O Neil not you Gilly," she coyly said. "You will get Coeld and Frees."

Weil she was saying this a Carreau flew from the s-Hor (e) wood and a chi-C lark followed.

"O, Shaw, that is a sign of Raynor Snow, and we can't go to the Ball, Carston it."

A Wild Wooley Brown dog named S(K)napp next appeared on g-Rogge legs. He looked semi-Lyon or Griffin-like, as he Russelled over the leaves.

"O Haras," wailed Psyche, with a half Belcher Sillec Kough. "Hill tear me Tibbetts."

"Hoffman," ordered the mid-Shipman, raising his Strong Hardy form, which, though it showed signs of fa-Teague, was neither deli Keator sickly.

"Hoffman," he repeated, "don't Payne A-dams-el like Sykes. You cause me a Peck of trouble. Your the Lasker I'll ever own."

He drew a pistol loaded with Kohn-shaped bullets, and shot the animal.

"That was Shotwell," exclaimed a Boy drawing near. "But look at the maid."

In the excitement she had fainted, and we will leave her beau, the boy and a Smith, who happened to pass, trying to revive her with a draught of Meade.

N. Y. U. Skating Song

A moonlit expanse of ice, the dance
Of a myriad mirror'd stars,
The air aglow with health, the flow
From quickened hearts, the hills of snow
Flash a thousand crystal spars.

Beside me One, the love of whom
Makes the wealth of worlds all mine:—
The star that leads my life must needs
Be pure and bright as the light that feeds
My soul from her eyes ashine.
Upon her breast sweet violets rest,
(Her heart is brave and true)
And, nestling there, they seem to bear
An added grace from one so fair,—
The flower of N. Y. U.

Arms crossed, hands clasped, and Cupid between,
No sound but our skates' merry tune,—
Away down the lake we follow the wake
The sparkling rays have served to make
In the trail of the rotund moon.

With balanced swing, as if on wing,
Far over the ice we skim,—
So swiftly we fly, just She and I,
That the silvery bank which flashes by
Has grown with our swiftness dim.

Ah, life is good! What one but would
That college days might last life through?
But all that's best for me will rest
In her who wears upon her breast
The violets of N. Y. U.

Misplaced Affection

He was an ugly-looking fellow. The surly expression, the low forehead and protruding jowl at once proclaimed his degeneracy. She, on the other hand, was a pretty girl of eighteen, and one could at once surmise, from her attentions to him, and by the lovelight that shone from her eyes whenever she looked at him, that he was her ideal. Seemingly, something had displeased him, and coax him as she would she could not bring him around. We, passengers, could see her as she coddled him and tried to tickle him to make him look pleasant. But all to no avail. "Well, dear, we get out next corner, now do, please be good"—and with that she kissed him, and both got out as the car stopped. He was indeed a "lucky dog."

In The Good Old Pony's Time

Note.—Prof. Sihler has completely killed ponying in the sophomore class by the introduction of a lecture course.

In the good old "pony's" time, in the good
old "pony's" time,
Strolling all around the town, in the evening time;
The text-book's new and handled not,
And that's a very good sign,
That work was very easy
In the good old "pony's" time.
In the good old "pony's" time, in the good
old "pony's" time,
Running through a Latin page, in the quickest time;
You hold a book of grayish brown,
And that's a very good sign,
Of how you used to do it
In the good old "pony's" time.
In the good old "pony's" time, in the good
old "pony's" time,
Bluffing in the Latin class, almost every time;

You hold a trot right on the page,
And that's an evident sign
That flunks would rarely happen
In the good old "pony's" time.

In the good old "pony's" time, in the good
old "pony's" time,
Holding up a Latin book and translating
fine;
A paper drops—professor looks,
And just that very small sign
Shows how you didn't do it
In the good old "pony's" time.

—M.

P. S.—In the dry old "lecture's" time, in the dry old lecture's time,
Sitting in the Latin room, writing answers
fine;
You hold a book of lecture notes,
And that very sinful sign
Brings pleasant recollections
Of the good old "pony's" time.

A LINE-UP

An Hour with an Eminent History Professor

CLASS, please come to order." The professor opens his roll book, looks sardonically at the vacant seats before him, jotting down marks in his black book, places his short, chubby right leg over his shorter, chubbier left one, and asks: "Mr. Moss, who was James I?"

"Wh—why, he was the son of the king before him; that must have been just James without any number."

"Whom did he marry, Mr. Moss?"

Moss, thinking it was all over, and resenting a second question, answers: "He married—why he married, substantially, a woman."

"Your answers are rather vague, Mr. Moss; James I, you remember, succeeded Elizabeth, and was the great-grand-nephew of Henry VIII. Henry VIII was, next to Elizabeth, the most popular king England ever had—er—r—that is, of course, Elizabeth was not a king—Henry was the most popular queen next to King Eliz—I mean to say—" A roseate blush, like the crimson setting sun, flushes the professor's face, and he passes on to another phase of history.

"Mr. Carlson," calls the "Yonkers Statesman," and immediately on hearing his name, Carlson assumes a reddish hue, as if the reflection of the professor's colored cheeks, and they exchange furious blushes for several minutes, while the class is more interested in the apparent embarrassment than in the lesson. "Mr. Carlson, when was the veto power of no avail, because Congress had no faith in the President?"

Carlson thinks for a minute, when he is evidently struck by the answer: "Oh, yes, in the reign of Professor Johnson—President Johnson—I mean. In the presidency of profes—"

"Yes, at that time there were seven cabinet officers, you know," continues the professor, "but in Hayes' administration the cabinet had grown to thirteen. Carl Schurz was a member, so there were seven members with Schurz and six without Schurz, making thirteen in all."

The laughter is loud, but Walt Leonard raises his hand above it and asks: "If the Irish and French are from the same Celtic stock, why aren't they alike?"

"They are in some respects, Mr. Leonard."

Walt, still unsatisfied: "They don't look alike."

"Mr. Beebe, will you give your oral review on the 'Relation of the Palaeolithic Man to the Model Parliament,' which I assigned you last week."

Freddie climbs the rostrum near the professor's desk and saws the air for ten minutes, cutting such parabolas and ellipses as would delight the heart of "Pom," but the cold, matter-of-fact Historian has no mercy. He allows his victim to sit down, awaiting uncomfortably the verdict, then taps his silver pencil on the desk, smiles just over Beebe's head, apparently to a confederate in the rear seat, and remarks: "That would be a very good oration on some other topic, Mr. Beebe."

"Now, Mr. Carreau, kindly close your book. I know some members of the class keep their books open, but I prefer them closed—and give briefly the history of France."

Cas, after looking wildly at the large map of Italy over the professor's chair, to collect his notes, answers: "Whe-e-e-en Ki-i-i-ing Jo-o-ha-ha-an of Arc——"

"Mr. Carreau, this is really excruciating, I do not——" but the bell rings and our sarcastic friend at the desk turns to the last cover of his book where he keeps the only memoranda he ever needs in exposing the history of the whole world, and looking around with a triumphant air, says, "We shall take to page 597 for the next time, gentlemen, 502 to 597, and please review carefully from page 450—class is excused."

True Triumph

(Suggested by Recent Labor Troubles.)

Oh Man! why dost thou arm thy hand
To smite thy foe tho' strong he be?
Throw off the steel, in goodness stand,
There's ne'er a foe to fight but thee.

Strive on, strive on, in endless strife
The soul within thy strength shall test:
There's but one foe in all thy life,
But conquer him and thou art blest.

What aim hast thou, Oh blinded one!
What canst thou see beyond the strife!
The race is all and when that's run
Thou'lt find no more in earthly life.

To Our Campus Trees

No fairer spot on this florescent sphere
Bears such a crowning growth of Nature's lords.
Majestic, grand and rare, as earth affords,
All climes have vied to send their choicest
hue

To give each season's glory of the year.
The sweet magnolia's bloom, with spring
accords,
And summer's heat, cool maple's shade rewards.
The sturdy chestnuts' fruit the autumns
cheer,

And groves of evergreen, winter delights.
Thus universal forest more complete
Ne'er reared its hoary heads to purer heights ;
For welkin never welcomed more to meet
Such rising offering to fragrant flights
Nor mortal more to live in such retreat.

NEW YORK LAW SCHOOL

35 NASSAU STREET NEW YORK CITY

1. Follows the Dwight Method of legal instruction, the method of that great teacher, Prof. Theodore W. Dwight.

2. Gives thoroughly practical instruction, developing the principles of the law and the reasons upon which they rest.

3. Is in New York City,—the best place to learn New York law and procedure,—the most desirable place in which to establish a lawyer's practice. Its location in the city affords an opportunity to attend the sessions of the courts, and also to gain practical experience in lawyers' offices, in connection with the law school study of legal principles.

4. Confers the degree of LL.B. in two years; of LL.M. in three years.

5. Has a Day School and also an Evening School. A student can attend either.

6. Had 831 students in attendance the past year (1901-1902), of these 289 were college graduates.

WALL PAPERS

VERY GOOD, BUT VERY CHEAP. New styles, used to be $1.50 to $3.50 a roll, are now selling from 10 cents upwards. Fine Silks, Antique, Metallic French, Pressed, Japanese, British and Domestic. Exclusive artistic draperies to match. We spare no expense to give satisfaction to our patrons in the department, and That's Our Secret of Success.

DRAPERIES

We have draperies to match all wall papers from 15 cents a yard. This is a very important feature to attain the acme of artistic excellence in decoration. No matter how much or how little you want to spend, you must have harmony of form and colorings. Write us for samples. Special Silk Draperies made at our Broomhead Mills, Paterson, N. J. Encourage Home Industry. Write for samples.

TAPESTRY MATERIALS

We manufacture tapestry materials superior to foreign goods and half the price. Book of samples, 10 cents. Send $1.50 for trial order, for 2 yards of 50 in. wide No. 6 goods, worth $3 00.

MANUAL of Art Decorations

The Art Book of the Century. 200 royal quarto pages, filled with full-page colored illustrations of moderate home interiors and studies. Price $2 00. If you want to be up in decoration, send $2 for this book; worth $50.

SCHOOL

Six 3 hour tapestry painting lessons in studio, $5.00. Complete written instructions by mail, $1.00. Tapestry paintings rented, full size drawing paints, brushes, etc., supplied. Nowhere, Paris not excepted, are such advantages offered pupils. New catalogue of 125 studies, 25 cents.
